When Nature Strikes.
Rockne's Power.
Why Babies Eat Pins.
When Our Eyes Open.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NATURE STRIKES with horrible force. IN SIX SECONDS Managua, capital of Nicaragua, was destroyed, every building in the business district leveled to the ground, more than a thousand killed, two thousand injured.

No attack in war equals that.

AND THE MANAGUA disaster is trifling compared with the famous Lisbon earthquake of November 1, 1755.

In an instant the great city of Portugal became a mass of ruins. A tidal wave rolled in, wrecking shipping in the Tagus, drowning many. Then fire broke out to complete the destruction.

TWENTY THOUSAND were killed, property loss amounted to $100,000,000, and the earthquake shock was felt from Scotland to Asia Minor.

The extent of this disaster, wrecking churches, caused many to lose faith in Christianity.

IT SHOULD rather have increased faith, reminding them of the earth's marvelous stability, traveling around the sun at the rate of nearly 2,000,000 miles a day and going with the sun through space, heaven knows how fast.

PRESIDENT HOOVER telegraphs the widow of Knute Rockne:

"I know that every American grieves with you."

A great teacher was Rockne. He convinced himself that his boys could win, convinced them that they could win, and they did win.

Success depends on transferring ideas from your own head into the heads of others.

Many, old, with creaking joints, will ask:

"How many teachers of Latin and Greek, Sanskrit and higher mathematics, how many preachers of the gospel would have to die to attract half as much attention as Knute Rockne now attracts, because he was THE BEST TEACHER OF FOOTBALL?

MOTHERS, NURSES, read and remember.

Dr. Jackson, whose specialty is removing foreign bodies from human air and food passages, says babies swallow pins because their mothers set the example.

When changing the baby, a mother holds safety pins in her mouth. The baby, learning by imitation, as all young animals must, puts safety pins into its mouth.

Don't hold pins in your mouth in the presence of babies or young children.

EARL MUSSELMAN, 22, student at the Pennsylvania Institute for the Blind and blind from birth, can now see, thanks to surgery, and has taken his first look at the world.

Bright flowers delight him and he finds intense pleasure in studying faces of companions whom he knew only by their voices.

The young man says:

"I won't have to guess at things any more."

Perhaps we shall all say that, when we awake on the other side of the grave, and our eyes are opened.

Let us hope so. This period of worry would hardly be worth while, if it were all.

APRIL FOOL is an interesting day for the late Mr. Darwin, developing many characteristics of monkey-house dwellers. Yesterday thousands in big cities found on their desks memoranda asking them to call Mrs. Fox on the telephone at number so-and-so, or Mr. Fish at number so-and-so.

The April fool inquirer would be told:

"This is the zoo, which Mrs. Fox do you want?" or "This is the aquarium, which Mr. Fish do you want?"

The telephone company yesterday arranged to thwart the practical jokers, by intercepting messages for the zoo and aquarium.

MRS. EDITH McCORMICK, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, has bought, for $185,000, a Persian rug more than 500 years old, at auction in London, and Mrs. McCormick's brother, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is said to have competed as bidder through an agent.

The rug, one of the "Persian animal carpets," could tell interesting stories of feet that walked over it.

The Russian Giant, Peter the Great, had it in his Winter Palace. Later it was given as a present to the Emperor of Austria.

AMERICAN manufacturers, by the way, make by machinery, rugs that the best judge can with difficulty distinguish from the genuine Oriental. The angels probably would prefer the machine-made to the Oriental rugs on which little children often worked 12 and 14 hours a day.

Hymie's Fate Nears Murder Jury

PROSECUTION DEMANDS CHAIR

Martin May Hear Verdict Tonight; Puts Hope for Acquittal in Akron Alibi

BULLETIN.

CLEVELAND, April 2.—The "Hymie" Martin murder case was given to the jury at 2:55 o'clock today.

CLEVELAND, April 2.—(AP.)—"Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin may know tonight whether a jury of five women and seven men believes he had a part in the slaying of former Councilman William E. Potter.

William E. Minshall, of Martin's counsel, had an hour and 20 minutes left to finish the defense plea today, and Prosecutor Ray T. Miller five minutes less in which to complete the state's demand that the Pittsburgh whisky runner be sent to the electric chair.

FOUR POSSIBLE VERDICTS

When the jurors will weigh Martin's alibi against the prosecution's chain of circumstantial evidence with four possible verdicts—guilty of first degree murder with or without a recommendation of mercy, guilty of second degree murder, or acquittal.

Chief Assistant Prosecutor P. L. A. Leighley branded Martin a "cold, calculating, designing murderer" as he opened the state's arguments yesterday. Samuel S. Rosenberg, of Pittsburgh, defense attorney, replied with charges that the state attempted to "put Martin on a spot where he wasn't."

MARTIN HAS ALIBI

Martin and his sweetheart, Mrs. Mary Outland Woodfield, have asserted they were in Cleveland that afternoon, but were driving to Akron at the hour of the slaying. A number of Akron witnesses supported the alibi.

GOV. PINCHOT WEAKENS ON RATE BILL

Executive Drops Elective Feature From Measure to Supplant Service Board

HARRISBURG, April 2.—(AP.) — The administration proposal for an elective fair rate board has been abandoned.

Before completion of either the Senate or House investigations of the Public Service Commission or the public utilities and before the elective plan received a test vote in the House of Representatives, where it was introduced, the elective features have been stricken from the administration bill.

Surrender on this major plank of Gov. Pinchot's campaign platform came within a few days of indications from Pinchot leaders in the House that the platform planks of reduction in automobile license fees and automobile drivers' fees had also been abandoned.

AMENDMENTS OFFERED

George W. Woodruff, special deputy attorney general in charge of utility matters and former attorney general in Pinchot's previous administration, announced today that he had presented the amendments to the fair rate board bill to Chairman Staudenmeier, Schuylkill, sponsor of the bill.

Friends of the Governor said he had given up all hope of approval of the elective feature of the fair rate board bill by the present Legislature. The Governor tolay was at his home in Milford.

Woodruff today explained to the House utilities investigating committee before it went into formal session that the administration bill had been amended to strike out all the elective features.

MEMBERS APPOINTIVE

Carrying copies of the amended bill, Woodruff told the committee members that he had prepared the amendments himself.

The amended bill ,while making all members appointive by the Governor, gives the Governor power of dismissal which he does not now have.

The appointments under the amendments shall be "with the advice and consent of the Senate."

The division of the state into districts for the purposes of the election are wiped out with the entire elective plan.

PROTECTION DEMANDED FOR QUIZ WITNESS

English Renews Attack on Works Accuser, Garland Defends Former Controller

Tumultous scenes marked the close today of City Council's public investigations into charges of inefficiency in the Public Works Department, as Henry Oliver Evans, the department's accuser, asked Council to protect his witnesses from intimidation.

Evans charged that William Wright, an assistant road supervisor for a state contractor, had been approached by another contractor and warned that if he took the stand again he would never get a job from anybody. He added:

"You want the truth and in order to get it you will have to protect the witnesses."

Both Councilman Harry Little, acting chairman in the absence of President John S. Herron, who is ill, and Assistant District Attorney William H. Colvin assured Mr. Evans that his witnesses would be protected. Attorney Colvin promised an immediate investigation.

The bickering between Councilman W. Y. English and Attorney Evans, which reached a climax yesterday when the lie was passed during a heated argument, flared anew today when Evans declared that he failed to get co-operation from City Council or the Public Works Department while he was city controller.

ENGLISH IN CLASH

English, jumping to his feet, shouted:

"If you had given us the co-operation after you became controller that you did before, we would all have been a lot better off."

Evans replied that he had given Council co-operation, to which English sarcastically replied:

"Oh, yes?"

Laughter greeted this reply, and English, pointing his finger at the audience, said:

"All right, go ahead and laugh. You'll see that I'm always right."

Then English charged that Evans had not given Council a statement of the city debt until four months after it was request-

PEPPER ENTERS POWER FIGHT

Chirman Smith announced the Philadelphian's acceptance of his request this morning, pointing out that the former Senator recognized "the case as one of great public importance in the issues involved."

Pepper will be opposed by John W. Davis, former Democratic presidential nominee, who will represent the Senate.

A short time later, Justice Department officials served notice they would support "as vigorously as they know how" the appointment of Smith.

ROCKNE'S BODY ARRIVES HOME

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 2.—(AP.)—Knute Rockne was back "home" today. His epical odyssey on earth was near trail's end.

All that was mortal of the man who blazed such a brilliant path of human achievement in his life span of only 43 short years, rested peacefully in a closed bronze, flower-blanketed casket in a quiet, modest funeral home on North Michigan street, just three short miles from the campus of old Notre Dame.

SADNESS, DESPAIR

The great Nordic chieftain of American football and good sportsmanship, who but four days ago left South Bend and Notre Dame with a broad smile on his face, was back "home" with the boys he loved so well, and with those who loved him and who will cherish his memory forever. But instead of ecstasy and joy, he

Rockne Life Story Recalls How He Received News Of Defeat by Tech

(Herewith is the first instalment of the thrilling and impressive story of Knute Rockne, the world's most famous football coach, who was killed in an airplane crash near Cottonwood, Kan., Tuesday. It is written by Warren Brown, noted sports writer of the Chicago Herald-Examiner. Brown and Rockne were the closest of personal friends, the friendship beginning with Rockne's advent as head coach at Notre Dame in 1918 and continuing up until his tragic death. Of all the life stories written about the famous coach, this unquestionably is the best, written as it is by Rockne's most intimate newspaper acquaintance. Brown's interesting narrative will continue daily until he has unfolded his brilliant portrayal of Rockne and his achievements.)

CHICAGO, April 2.—The last Saturday of November, 1926. Out in the gathering darkness of Soldier Field, the football teams of Army and Navy were engaged in a struggle, the like of which has seldom, if ever, been duplicated on any lot in the land.

Among the cluster of writers attracted for this game, perhaps the most colorful of the year, was Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach.

His own team, victor in its eight games played thus far in the season scored upon but once, was in Pittsburgh, playing Carnegie Tech.

The team had been intrusted to Heartly (Hunk) Anderson, Rockne's assistant.

Against his better judgment, Rockne had decided to look in on the Army-Navy game, and do his syndicate-writing chore.

There is a time difference between Pittsburgh and Chicago, and even as Army and Navy cut and slashed their way towards the epic 21-21 tie, the news reached Soldier Field, that Coach Wally Steffen's Skibos had crushed Notre Dame, 19 to 0.

Rockne, then, as always, was surrounded by well-wishers, and by some who liked to bask in reflected glory. And t was one of

FIREMAN'S OWN HOME AFIRE

Capt. Charles Frank, of Engine Company No. 38, fought vainly today to save his own apartment and those of five neighbors from serious damage by fire, which broke out on the first floor of apartment building at 5713 Callowhill street, and spread through the first floor before it was discovered.

Called after the first alarm was sent in, Capt. Frank arrived with his men and more equipment to find the building enveloped in flame and smoke. Until he told them, none of his fellow workers knew he was trying to save his own home.

Other occupants of the building were the families of Mrs. Fannie Kapro, H. J. Darrah, Annie M. Focer, Jane A. Martin, her sister, and Mrs. Catherine Sharimplin.

Apartments on the second and third floor were damaged by smoke and water. Battalion Chief Ralph Longmore said the loss would amount to $8,000.

Ford's Farm Plan Means Pay For Summer Boarder

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Henry Ford is going to keep his mechanics busy all year round by putting them on farms in the summer.

Six months work for Henry. Six months on the farm. A total of six months in all.

It's a good idea. After a man spends six months on a farm he will be glad to get back to some job where he gets paid for the work.

Bill Wrigley also goes in for farm products by buying a million pounds of cotton. The South can reciprocate by dedicating an old chewing gum week.

This should speed up big business. Andy Mellon could fall in line by letting us print his treasury certificates on rainy days and allowing us to spend them when the sun shines.

We don't know how the farmers will fall for the Ford plan

Pittsburghers to Attend Rockne's Funeral

A score of Pittsburghers will attend funeral services for Knute Rockne, famous Notre Dame coach, when the last rites are held in South Bend, Ind., Saturday or early next week.

Those who have signified their intention of being present include Clarence Overend, graduate manager of athletics, John Laboon, president of athletic council, and Head Coach Bob Waddell, of Carnegie Tech; Elmer Layden, head coach of Duquesne University, one of "Rock's" own Four Horsemen; Joe Bach, Layden's assistant, and Father Carroll, of Duquesne; Dr. John B. (Jock) Sutherland, Pitt's head coach, and W. Don Harrison, director of athletics.

Other Pittsburghers who are expected to attend are members of the local Notre Dame Club, several Duquesne gridders, and former schoolmates of Rockne.

It was revealed today that one of the prize possessions of Mr. Harrison, athletic director at Pitt, is a letter from Rockne received an hour before the death of the famous coach.

In the letter, Rockne set the date for the Pitt-Notre Dame game for 1932 for October 29.

Pantages Wins New Trial On Girl's Charges

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—(INS.)—Alexander Pantages, Los Angeles theater millionaire, today was granted a new trial by the California Supreme Court on charges that he attacked Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer.

Pantages was convicted in the Los Angeles Superior Court and was sentenced to serve from one to 50 years in San Quentin Prison.

His motion for a new trial being denied in the Superior Court, he carried his fight to the District Court of Appeals and was successful, the appellate court finding he was entitled to another hearing because of errors of the trial court and because of asserted unethical conduct on the part of District Attorney Buron Fitts, of Los Angeles.

Attorney General U. S. Webb, on behalf of the state, asked the Supreme Court to review the matter and today's decision was the result.

Pantages has been at liberty under $100,000 bond, winning his release from the Los Angeles county jail by an order of the State Supreme Court after the lower courts had denied him bail.

2 CONVICTS CONFESS OHIO PRISON FIRE FATAL TO 320

PLOT DENIED, SPITEWORK BLAMED

Grand Jury Meets to Fix Degree in Murder Charge; Convicts Express Regrets

COLUMBUS, O., April 2.—(AP.)—Prosecutor Donald J. Hoskins, of Franklin County, announced last night that two convicts had confessed they started the fire that claimed the lives of 320 prisoners in Ohio Penitentiary last April 21.

The prosecutor named the men as Clinton Grate, alias "Cotton," and Hugh Gibson, alias Gibbons and "The Jew."

Gibson, whose home is in Philadelphia, was sentenced from Cleveland. Grate, formerly of Virginia, was sentenced from Dayton, O. Both are serving terms for robbery.

Hoskins' announcement came a few hours after the county grand jury had concluded its investigation into the catastrophe. The jury will vote today on whether indictments shall be returned against the two convicts, charging them with first degree murder. Under the state arson code they would be liable to death in the electric chair if convicted.

DENY ESCAPE PLOT

Both expressed regret that their act resulted in wholesale death, and denied the blaze was set in a plot to escape, as had been reported by investigator of the state fire marshal's office.

In the three attempts to fire the prison candles from the chapel were used, but Gibson and Grate declared the prisoners who supplied them knew nothing of the plans.

In the first attempt to start the fire, the confession said, candles were placed in wooden forms used in making concrete walls for the cell blocks. The forms were piled in the prison yard near the chapel.

TELL HOW FIRES WERE SET

After telling how other plots failed, Gibson's statement explained how a final attempt succeeded through the use of a "fuse" on the fifth range of I and K cell blocks:

"Cotton fixed it and he fixed it up pretty good, and put the shavings all around it, and he took a little pan and we filled that full of oil and put the shavings in it. He set a candle in there and put some sticks around it. He said: 'It is all set now, so let's light it.' I lit the candle."

Congress Holiday Best Relief Aid, Says Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 2.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

The reported decision from Washington not to call an extra session of the Congress to relieve the farmers and redress unemployment will impress the country as sound.

Mr. Coolidge

When the last Congress assembled in the early spring of 1929 the farmer was in a fair condition and unemployment was not a pressing question. The longer the Congress was in session the worse the condition of the farmer became and the larger grew the list of the unemployed. While it is not possible to say that conditions were not improved by legislation it is apparent they were not cured. A large prospective Treasury deficit has not proven a sovereign remedy.

Business will also gain some courage from the report that by curbing expenses a further increase of taxes may be avoided. But what is especially cheering is the suggestion that politics is not to agitate the country. Now that the Democrats have taken and published a straw vote there seems no reason for present disturbance in either party.

No extra Congress, no extra taxes, and no extra politics make the wisest proposals for relief that have yet been announced.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

PINCHOT YIELDS ON FAIR RATE MEASURE

Executive Drops Elective Feature From Bill to Supplant Service Board

Scranton-Springbrook Water companies and other utilities earning excessive returns on invested capital was urged today by the Rev. James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, one of Gov. Pinchot's observers on the House Utility Investigating Committee.

Father Cox made his suggestion during the testimony of Stacey May, Dartmouth College professor of economics, who was reviewing the financing methods by which high returns on actual investments in common stock are possible.

The Pittsburgh priest said the committee has already uncovered enough data on which to base "criminal proceedings" and advocated early action in this direction.

He charged that petty, individual thieves are prosecuted regularly and freely, but that public utilities are "stealing millions and we pat them on the back and tell them to go ahead."

May, in his testimony, analyzed the reports of three electric companies made to the Public Service Commission and showing, he said, that the utilities were earning from 25 to 84 per cent on the actual investment of the holding companies, as represented by the common stock.

SPECIAL PRIVILEGES

Father Cox argued that public utilities "are given special privileges not enjoyed by individuals and that they should be classified separately."

May said the reports to the Public Service Commission showed the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company earned 84 per cent on its common stock in 1929 while the Metropolitan Edison Company earned 34 per cent and the Duquesne Light Company earned 25 per cent.

The Duquesne Light Company's report to the commission, May said, showed depreciated fixed capital in the amount of $134,835,000 and a total of $92,500,000 in bonds and preferred stock. The common stock total, he said, was $42,335,000.

From the 1929 operating income of $14,989,000, May said, $4,300,000 was paid in interest on bonds and preferred stock, leaving $10,689,000, or 25 per cent, as the equity of the common stock, all held by the Philadelphia Company.

GAS RATES

May said the Equitable Gas Company, of Pittsburgh, owned by the Philadelphia, paid 70 cents per 1,000 cubic feet of gas for gas they produced by leasing Philadelphia fields and equipment. At the same time from outsiders they purchased gas at a cost of 34 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. There may be some valid reason, he said, why the Equitable could purchase gas cheaper from outside companies than from the company which it owned. This situation, he said, was a typical one and declared that Public Service Commission should look into such deals between companies and their holding companies which jumped operating expenses.

CURTIS MAY RUN FOR SENATE

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(INS.)—Vice President Charles Curtis has made no definite decision, but his present inclination is to retire from the vice presidency next year and stand for the Senate again from his native Kansas. This was learned today on unimpeachable authority.

The senator whom Curtis would oppose next year, if and when he decides to make the race, would be George McGill, a Democrat, who upset the political apple cart last November by defeating Henry J. Allen.

Curtis' retirement would throw the field open for the Republican vice presidential nomination. It is assumed on all sides that Mr. Hoover will be nominated without opposition. Periodically Washington is regaled with gossip that Postmaster General Brown is the heir apparent, or that Secretary of War "Pat" Hurley is to get the call. More recently rumors were afloat that Theodore Roosevelt, now governor of Porto Rico, was being considered. However, no one took that very seriously.

RECOVER 31 DEAD AFTER SEA CRASH

Returning Emigrants Die As Liner, Plane Carrier Collide in Dense Fog

MALAGA, Spain, April 2.—(AP.)—Thirty-one bodies were recovered late today from the wreckage of the French steamer Florida following her collision with the British aircraft carrier Gorious in a dense fog 60 miles off Gibraltar yesterday.

Authorities were continuing the search for additional bodies, but because of the confusion it could not be definitely established whether others were missing.

The bodies which were identified included 17 Italians, five Syrians, four Poles, one Russian, three Slavs and one Spaniard. All of them were steerage passengers, chiefly emigres returning to their native countries.

The Florida was struck between the bow and bridge. It was here that the majority of the casualties occurred. This section of the steerage was occupied chiefly by Italian emigres.

In spite of mist, planes from the aircraft carrier flew overhead and witnessed the accident. The flying deck of the carrier was littered with debris following the crash so that the planes were forced to alight on the mainland. Four of them failed to reach the shore and sank in the sea, but their crews were saved.

NEW QUAKES TERRORIZE 40,000 HOMELESS NICARAGUANS

FIRES STILL RAGE IN RUINS

Toll Mounts—2,500 Dead And 5,000 Injured; Loss In Property $40,000,000

By S. H. MOORE
Universal Service Special Radio.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 2.—This city of 40,000 early today presented terror-stricken scenes as the inhabitants fled from the new earth shocks which began at 8:10 last night. The quakes continued after midnight.

Thousands of injured, homeless and hungry people wander through the debris-strewn city awaiting aid from the outside world. More than 25,000 refugees were camped in the hills overlooking the ruins of their homes, shattered by the terrific earthquake of Tuesday.

Fire still raged in the northern part of the city. Efforts of U. S. Marines working under the direction of Lieut. Col. Sultan, U. S. Army Engineers, to stop the progress of the flames with dynamite were fruitless.

DAMAGE $40,000,000

The new National Palace, valued at $1,000,000, is in ruins, valuable government records being burned along with the building.

A complete account of the damage done by the first 11 earthquakes and the recurrent temblors that swayed the city is impossible at present because of the almost helpless state of the city and the gigantic task taken over by the government, the National Guard and the Marines.

Estimates of the dead mounted today from 1,800 to 2,500, with injured at 5,000 and most of the city of more than 40,000 souls homeless and deprived of shelter, save rude leantos and tents on the shores of Lake Managua and near the Tropical Radio station's temporary plant five miles outside the city.

Damage may reach $40,000,000.

Hundreds of unidentified bodies have been placed in the emergency morgue in the Marine enclosure at Campo del Marte, including American civilians, women and children.

MARTIAL LAW

American wives and families are being housed in Marine barracks temporarily, awaiting evacuation to Corinto and Granada.

The entire city is a shambles, hot and dangerous because of the fire and the unsafe footing in the ruins.

The Marine Corps barracks has been turned into a refugee station, with more than 2,000 injured filling the building for treatment.

Ernest J. Swift, acting director for insular and foreign affairs of the Red Cross, is expected here today by plane to take charge of all relief work.

President Monacada has issued a decree declaring martial law. He said all food would be distributed free.

Two airplanes from the Coco Solo Air Station at Cristobal brought 600 pounds of medical supplies, with encouraging reports that an army of relief workers with food and more medical supplies probably would arrive at the stricken city early tomorrow.

MEXICO CITY, April 2.—(AP.)—Dr. Pedro Jose Zepeda, forcign representative of the Nicaraguan insurgent, Augustino Sandino, today sent a message to Sandino urging immediate cessation of attacks against U. S. Marines so they could apply all their efforts to earthquake relief. Dr. Zepeda has great influence with Sandino, who frequently consults him.

ROCKNE'S PAL BURIED

ELMIRA, N. Y., April 2.—(AP.)—James Watkins, who played the other end with Knute Rockne on the Notre Dame football team in 1911, was being buried here when the South Bend football mentor was killed in Kansas.

Watkins, a 43-year-old engineer for a gas drilling company, died Saturday and was buried Tuesday. He was a native of Indiana and engineered gas well development in Mexico and South America before coming here last September from Wellsville, N. Y.

Friends said Watkins was proud of having played with the more noted of the 1911 Notre Dame ends.

QUAKE VICTIM ENLISTED HERE

James F. Dickey, of Vallejo, Cal., chief quartermaster clerk of the United States Marine Corps, listed in Associated Press dispatches as among the dead in the Nicaraguan earthquake, enlisted in the Marine Corps in Pittsburgh in 1906, according to his brother, Fred E. Dickey, of 144 Lloyd street, Edgewood.

Dickey said today that he had received no official word from Washington of his brother's death. Another brother, Harry, lives in Innwood street.

During the World War Dickey was an instructor in a Marine school in Portsmouth, Va. He went to Nicaragua about a year ago. No mention was made in dispatches of his wife and two children, who were believed to be in Mangua with him.

Rockne's Body 'Home;' Saddened Thousands Pay Tribute

brought sadness and despair. He was dead, and so were the hearts of the thousands who found it so hard to believe that their "Rock" could pass on so tragically at the very zenith of his glory—of Notre Dame's glory.

Those in charge of the body viewed it, and decided that it would be best to keep the casket sealed forever, except to give his widow a one last glimpse at the man everyone cherished. But it was doubtful whether Mrs. Rockne would care to see "Rock" again under the circumstances of mutilation and death. She, like all of Rock's boys, wanted to remember him as he was when last she saw him—beaming, joking and laughing.

GUARDS OF HONOR

Escorted by guards of honor, the body of the famous Notre Dame football coach was returned to South Bend last night at 11:08 o'clock, but how vastly different was the homecoming from those of the past. The same thousands jammed the railroad stations both here and in Chicago as they did just four short months ago when he led his football legions back from their glorious invasion of the West, but the same thousands were silent, awed and hushed as the casket was trucked quickly to a waiting hearse and taken slowly through the massed throng to the undertaking parlor where it will rest until the funeral.

Even today, pending Mrs. Rockne's planned arrival at 6 p. m. from Florida, where she received word of her famous husband's sudden death, funeral plans were indefinite. It was the general belief that the funeral would be held Monday or Wednesday from Sacred Heart Church on the Notre Dame campus, where Rockne worshipped, and where he was baptized six years ago.

RITES INDEFINITE

En route last night, Mrs. Rockne was reported to have mentioned "the funeral Saturday," but a special dispensation from the bishop of the Fort Wayne diocese would be necessary, because of Holy Week.

Meanwhile Notre Dame and South Bend paid silent respect. Flags were at half mast, as they will be until after the funeral. Business was more or less at a standstill and most of the students, advised that they couldn't see the face of the great master of football again, had departed for their homes for the Easter holidays.

NOTABLES TO ATTEND

In their wake, hundreds of notables of the sport world headed toward South Bend to attend the funeral. Not least among them were almost every football player Rock had trained, who was able to come. The Four Horsemen" of 1924 were to be at the funeral in a body.

The funeral, although simple, promised to be one of the largest in American history. Virtually every prominent football coach and athletic leader in college life planned to be present.

FOKKER BLAMES WEATHER

COTTONWOOD FALLS, Kan., April 2.—(AP.)—A coroner's jury having failed to determine the cause of an airplane crash which sent Knute Rockne and seven others to their deaths, interest turned today toward an inspection by Anthony Fokker, designer of the craft.

Flying here from Los Angeles, Fokker expressed the belief "the flight should not have been undertaken in existing weather conditions" and that adverse flying conditions and the human element rather than a structural failure was responsible.

He said, however, he would withhold a definite statement until he had viewed the wreckage of the Transcontinental and Western Air Express liner and talked with witnesses.

STATE ENDS PROBE

The short verdict, "The deceased came to their deaths in an airplane fall, cause undetermined," closed the state's investigation after cowboys, who were the first to reach the scene, and aviation experts had testified.

Guards patrolled the forlorn scene of the mishap, near Bazaar, Kan., while authorities sought to substantiate reports that H. J. Christen, Chicago, one of the victims, had cashed a $55,000 check shortly before he boarded the ill-fated liner. Only $400 was found in his clothing. From Chicago, his attorney, Murray Miller, was quoted as saying that Christen either deposited the money in another bank or invested in securities.

POLICE, CROWD CLASH AT MINE

SCRANTON, April 2.—(AP.)—Police and firemen were called out today when a clash occurred between mine workers and officers at the Dodge colliery of the Glen Alden Coal Company in West Scranton.

A crowd of 600 men had gathered when pickets of striking miners from Wilkes-Barre came here to request local workers to join their strike, which is not sanctioned by the miners' union.

Police used tear gas to disperse the crowd.

When policemen attempted to break up the crowd several officers were beaten. Tear gas failed, and a call was sent for firemen. They brought hose and played water on the mob, dispersing it.

No arrests were made. Several suffered cuts and bruises.

LINGLE SLAYING TRIAL NEAR END

CHICAGO, April 2.—(INS.)—Culminating nearly three weeks of startling testimony, the case of Leo V. Brothers, charged with the murder of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, reporter, was to pass into the hands of a jury today.

The fate of the reputed gunman of St. Louis was expected to be considered by the jury of 12 men after closing arguments by defense and prosecution, and the judge's instructions.

It is probable that Brothers will know his fate by nightfall.

Expressions of confidence that they will be victorious have come from both sides.

DIVORCE GIVEN POLA NEGRI

PARIS, April 2.—(AP.)—Pola Negri, moving picture actress, was granted a divorce by the French courts today from Prince Serge Mdivani. She sailed yesterday for America. Before sailing Miss Negri said:

"I am going to make my first talkie. I want to be free and stay free."

Miss Mary McCormick, opera singer, told friends in Paris last January that she and Prince Serge would be married as soon as the decree was granted. The latter confirmed this in Los Angeles on March 19. In announcing her intention, Miss McCormick said:

"I am giving up my career in Europe and I have decided to get married."

The wedding date has not been announced.

Bill in Legislature Asks Mooney Pardon

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 2.—(AP.)—Assemblyman James L. Quigley, San Francisco, introduced a resolution in the House today asking that Gov. James Rolph, Jr., issue a pardon to Tom Mooney.

Mooney is serving a term on charges of participation in the fatal 1916 Preparedness Day bombing in San Francisco. This is one of many attempts to obtain freedom for Mooney.

SEEK MISSING GIRL, SUITOR

Police are searching for Rose Buratti, 19, who disappeared from her home, 1118 Steuben street, Elliott, March 16, it was disclosed today.

Patsy Buratti, the girl's father, said he believed she was forced into an elopement by a 47-year-old suitor, a city employe, whose attentions she had spurned because of his age and because he is the father of five children.

Caroline Buratti, 14, sister of the missing girl, told detectives that two days before Rose disappeared she spoke of death threats if she refused to marry her elderly suitor. She said today:

"Rose met him at a New Year dance in the home of Mary Angelo, 1185 Stuben street. He came often to see my sister, and bought her candy, stockings, shoes and other presents. The day she left she packed all her clothes, her watch, blankets, cushions and pictures, and said: 'I'm going away and I'm never coming back.'

"I warned her to stay, but she said 'Shut up' and went out."

Planes Kill 3 Kin, But Boy Will Fly

LOS ANGELES, April 2.—(AP.)—Although airplanes have cost him his mother, Claire Fahy, his stepfather, Herbert Fahy, and his uncle, Robert Fry, 10-year-old James H. Adams still is determined to be an aviator when he grows up.

Fry lost his life Tuesday when a passenger plane he was piloting crashed near Bazaar, Kan., carrying Knute Rockne and seven others to death.

Fake Tragedy Alarm Broadcast as 'Joke'

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 2.—(AP.)—A mysterious radio announcer, from an unlocated station, was responsible tonight for yesterday's cruelest prank.

He broadcast a statement that fire was sweeping Boardwalk hotels with heavy death toll, and hotel proprietors began almost at once to be besieged by distracted relatives of guests from near and far.

LOOTED OWN BANK, SAYS CAPTIVE

Outwitted by Two Women, He Admits Embezzlement And Illegal Marriage

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—(AP.)—Police circulars sent out two years ago picturing a dapper, good-looking man, carried the notation "quite a ladies' man."

Today that man—emaciated, sunken cheeked—sits in a City Hall cell, admitting he was outwitted by two women after eluding police.

Paul Wupper, 54, self-confessed embezzler, former mayor and bank president of Beemer, Neb., charged with bigamy, attributed his arrest to the mother of his second wife who, he said, had an uncanny ability to "read his mind."

CONSCIENCE-STRICKEN

And it was his conscience—weighing the fear that his second wife, who trapped and had him arrested, "knew everything"—that led him yesterday, as he awaited a continued hearing on non-support and bigamy charges, to admit that he was an embezzler, also.

Yesterday Brinkman was taken to a cell to await the arrival of his second wife. He was restive while he waited, and finally confessed to an assistant district attorney that he was wanted in the west for embezzlement.

"MIND READER"

He said:

"It was my mother-in-law. She was a mind reader. When I failed to sleep well at night she would always know it, and next morning she would examine me. She'd say: 'You didn't sleep last night. What have you done? What's on your mind?'"

Wupper was given a brief, formal hearing today and held without bail for extradition to Nebraska.

The second wife, the former Mrs. Hedwig Hirsch, whom he first met in a cafe here, said today she was anxious to have the marriage annulled.

Juror Fined $25 For Dry Law Opinion

MEDIA, Pa., April 2.—(AP.)—Much to his surprise, Thomas Meaney learned that one may be fined for indicating contempt of the prohibition law.

Meaney was a juror in the bootlegging case of Joseph O'Brien. The evidence was indisputable and Judge Albert D. MacDade said the jury need not retire. It was polled and Meaney cast the lone ballot for acquittal. The judge, surprised, ordered another poll, with the same result. Judge MacDade then dismissed Meaney as a juror and fined him $25.

Sewickley Youth Wins Scholarship

PRINCETON, N. J., April 2.—(AP.)—Travel scholarships of $2,500 have been awarded to Charles H. Moore, of Sewickley, Pa., and Joseph O. Gray, Columbus, O., seniors at Princeton University.

The awards are given annually by Mrs. Edgar Palmer for study and life among foreign peoples.

Man Exonerated In Barbecue Killing

A verdict of "excusable and justifiable homicide" was returned today by a coroner's jury following an inquest into the death of Michael Susko, 17, of 20 Boyd street, who was shot and killed March 15 by Louis Micco, a watchman, after the youth had forced a window of the New Penn Barbecue, Bethel Township.

Ford Plans Pay for Summer Boarders of summer workingmen. Now they will have to pay the city folks instead of charging them room and board.

It's a god plan if it works. And Hank never had one that didn't, with the exception of a peace ark or two.

After signing 62 different colored peace treaties the nations of Europe are sore because Germany wants to agree with Austria.

We see no reason why Germany shouldn't agree with Austria. Their last agreement made us all happy when they agreed to quit.

But, now, it seems that agreements attack peace at its very roots.

We got peace without victory and now we get it without anything.

If Germany were permitted to be friendly with Austria that would mean the foundation of the United States of Europe. After looking at the U. S. of America the Europeans think they would be much happier fighting.

Which is a hoss in a different sweepstakes. If there ever was a U. S. of E. who would be the first President? Mahatma Gandhi? Mussolini? The Dolly sisters? Or a bogus duke?

No, my little friends, there will never be a U. S. of E. In the first place, what would be the official language of investigations?

Europe is made up of many different peoples who are taught to hate each other from schoolbooks to epitaphs.

And they do. With very little effort. It's a very beautiful thought. But so is shooting rockets at the moon.

The minute that two European nations start getting friendly that makes seven others hostile. They're as suspicious of each other as bright pupils in a spelling bee.

The only way they can win is for the others to miss.

That's where diplomacy steps in and does its merchandising. You draw the other guy a warm bath, hoping he will step on the soap.

So it looks as if the next European substitute for peace will happen around 1950. The smart young fellow will get married and raise himself a crop of little exemptions. Not that we object to fighting. That's easy. It's only the bonus that is difficult.

Because they're made of fine leathers, over correct-fitting lasts, with the most thorough workmanship,* NISLEY SHOES *hold their shape surprisingly long, and wear like "twice the money"!

THEY'RE SMART and sleek-fitting when you buy them — and they outwear many shoes at much higher prices!

This is what Nisley customers invariably tell us. Then we tell them the reason why:

Nisley Shoes are worth much more than $5. They can be sold at that price only because we make all our own shoes in our own plants to supply our more than fifty stores. As great quantity-purchasers of basic materials . . . including the finest, softest leathers . . . we get very advantageous prices. And selling direct to you, there's no "middle profit."

If we bought our shoes instead of making them, we could neither control the quality as we do, nor sell them at less than $8 to $10. You'll know when you try on your first pair that Nisley Shoes are easily worth that much more money!

And besides . . . here's everything you want in style . . . in colors . . . in types of shoes and heels . . . in fit and wear and solid comfort!

Types of Shoes for Easter* . . . Smart street pumps . . . Oxfords and two-eye ties for wear with your suit . . . Strap slippers that flatter the foot . . . Eggshell pumps for pastel frocks . . . Black moire slippers for little print dresses.

Nisley's New Colors* . . . Skipper Blue . . . Indies Brown . . . Almora Brown . . . Glossed Watersnake . . . Dull Blacks . . . and all the Beiges from palest Parchment to deep rich Maple!

EVANS CHARGES INTIMIDATION IN QUIZ

ed. He turned to Councilman Robert Garland for substantiation, and Garland replied:

"It was under Danny Winters. He was the one we couldn't get the statement from."

"SHUT UP"

Continuing his argument that Evans failed to produce the report, Garland interrupted English and turning to Councilman Little said:

"Tell him to shut up."

English, his face flushed, was on his feet again, shouting:

"You can't tell me that, Mr. Garland, you sat right beside me at that meeting."

Bedlam broke loose at this juncture with Little, English, Garland and Attorney Evans clamoring for attention. In the midst of the confusion, Garland made a motion for adjournment which was carried. In accordance with an agreement earlier in the day, Council stands adjourned until after the Easter holidays.

PROMISED RECALL

The high spot of the short morning session came when Evans charged intimidation of his witnesses. Wright's qualifications as a witness had been challenged yesterday to which Evans yielded, promising that he would be recalled.

Replying to Evans' request, acting Chairman Little said:

"It was proven that Wright was not an expert witness, so you got the breaks in not having him here."

Continuing his demand, Evans said:

"Council should see that witnesses can testify without intimidation. The district attorney's office should look into this."

Attorney Colvin, who is representing the district attorney's office, assured Mr. Evans that he would investigate the charge, upon which Evans asked Councilman Little:

"Do you agree to protect witnesses?"

Little replied:

"I will give you that assurance."

Entering into the argument, Councilman Charles Anderson said:

"If it developed that some contractor has been interferring with the affairs of this Council, he should be punished. I think he should be blacklisted."

Evans was unable to learn the name of the contractor who is supposed to have made the threat and had not communicated with Wright since yesterday.

Councilman Garland declaring that Evans had acted right in giving notice of the alleged intimidation of witnesses, also agreed that the tampering contractor should be blacklisted.

SYSTEM CHANGED

The first constructive development as a direct result of the investigation, which ended its seventh day today, became known when Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert announced a proposed change in the method of letting contracts. The change deals specifically with lumber items used on city improvement work, and gives assurance that more care will be exercised in the future. The change, however, does not become effective until it is approved by Director Edward G. Lang.

Reppert was questioned by Attorney Evans regarding the proposed change. He asked particularly if the department had the right to reject all bids. Councilmen and Attorney Lee Beatty, Lang's counsel, assured Evans that such legal authority existed and Evans then asked Director Lang if he had ever rejected all bids. Lang replied that he had in two or three cases, to which Evans said:

"In two or three cases out of 900 jobs?"

Lang corrected him:

"Out of 1,300 jobs."

To which Evans replied:

"That's worse yet."

LITTLE CRITICISED

As Lang assured Evans that there was nothing wrong about that procedure, Councilman English objected to Evans' method of questioning, declaring to Chairman Little:

"You as chairman should stop that kind of questions. We should try to maintain a judicial attitude at this hearing."

He was interrupted by Little, who said:

"I have refered 1,000 fights and let them hit with one arm free. Let them both have a chance."

English replied:

"If you consider this a prize fight, go ahead."

Evans was cautioned to confine his questions to the subject.

There were further questions concerning the method of advertising for bids, Evans closing the subject by declaring that as long as contingent items exist in contracts the bidding is not competitive. He added:

"It's just a form."

An agreement to expedite the hearing was reached at a conference between Attorney Evans and Attorney Beatty this morning when Beatty agreed to withdraw his objections to Evans presenting his case as a whole.

VICTORY FOR EVANS

The withdrawal by Beatty was considered as a victory for Evans.

When the hearing started last week Evans sought to introduce his evidence upon the 78 specific construction items on which he claims "poor engineering" and inefficiency caused increases in costs over original estimates of more than $1,000,000. Under the agreement, Evans will now present his case in its entirety, together with a detailed tabulation of 12 of the 78 jobs completed in Reppert's office. The improvements covered in the tabulation are:

Bellaire street, Allegheny Cemetery, William Penn place, Boulevard of the Allies, Bates street, Mt. Washington, Grizella street, Sycamore street, Bond street, Mt. Washington roadway and Lincoln avenue.

William A. Fox, of the engineering department, the first witness called today, was questioned by Evans if the Public Works Department ever attempted to get a reduction in the contract price where increased quantities merited such a decrease.

Fox replied that a number of contractors had been called into the public works office, but he could not say what had transpired. He said that Tom Reed could probably answer. Reed is ill in Atlantic City. Evans charged in the 78 cases heh ad checked there was no sign of any reduction where the quantities were increased.

ESTIMATES CHECKED

Fox testified that all estimates on city improvement work are checked by two checkers in the office of Field Engineer Snyder.

Reppert, who followed Fox to the stand, renewed his recommendations that an engineer be assigned to the Controller's office to watch prices on construction jobs and suggested that he be made a member of the City Planning Commission in order to expedite the work there. He said that plans for the new Smithfield Street Bridge, which must be closed soon, were being held up because the commission is undermanned.

SHORT HAUL BUS PERMIT ASKED

Application was made yesterday before Commissioner Charles H. Young, of the Public Service Commission, by the Pennsylvania General Transit Company for permission to transport way passengers between Wilkinsburg and Blairsville on through coaches operating between Pittsburgh and New Jersey.

It was testified the company now operates three buses for local traffic between Pittsburgh and Blairsville, but is not permitted to carry local passengers between those points on through buses. Removal of restrictions would give the territory eight buses daily. Officers of the company testified the through buses to the East are never filled and that lifting of the ban would put them on a paying basis.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks, sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

Two armed thugs held up a store at 2338 Candace street and forced C. L. Miller, the manager, and five customers into a rear room, but found only a trivial sum. The day's receipts had been deposited in a bank. After looting the cash register the robbers took 56 cents from C. P. GYRO-COMPASS EXPERT WITH NAUTILUS

Naval Man Demurs at First Invitation, But Gives in to Sift Magnetic Mysteries

A gallant, sea-wary company of adventurers has been assembled for the trans-polar submarine expedition of Sir Hubert Wilkins. From the far corners of the nation they have gathered to board the Nautilus and risk their lives under the Arctic ice crust. Who are they? Why are they going? These questions are answered in a series of personality sketches now appearing in this newspaper. Below is the fourth, dealing with Frank Blumberg, gyro-compass expert.

By HERMAN GIESKE

NEW YORK, April 1.—We want the best gyro-compass man in America!

This appeal went forth immediately after it was decided Sir Hubert Wilkins would attempt to reach the North Pole in a submarine. The answer eventually came in the person of Chief Electrician's Mate Frank Blumberg, "lent" to the expedition by the United States Navy. He has few peers as an expert on gyros.

DEMURRED AT FIRST

Aides of Sir Hubert approached Blumberg and put the proposition to him. At first he demurred:

"Me go to the North Pole in a 'pig boat'? Huh!"

Blumberg, it happened, is an old submarine man—and having been trapped in the ill-fated R-6 when it sank off San Pedro, Cal., in 1925, he was not enthusiastic about the idea.

Then Sir Hubert's aides mentioned the fact that the Nautilus would have to depend entirely on a gyro-compass when the subsea craft entered the Arctic magnetic fields, where an ordinary magnetic compass would be useless. That, as they say in the Navy, hit Blumberg "amidships."

It touched the scientific soul that's in him. He knew, far better than some of those conversing with him, how vital a gyro-compass would be up there in the grim Polar waters. The idea of taking a gyro-compass to "Ero," which is the North Pole, appealed to him.

DECIDES TO ACCEPT

You see, a gyro-compass never has been taken that far north and no one knows exactly how it will behave when it is asked to spin at the very axis of the earth. So he answered:

"I'll go."

He signed on as chief electrician and upon his almost uncanny knowledge of electrical tricks will depend, in a large degree, the fate of the 19 scientists and adventurers who will accompany Sir Hubert.

Blumberg is 31, married, and hails from Atlanta, Ga. A soft southern slur is noticed in some of his words, but he has no drawl. His mind works too rapidly for that.

Casey Company Wins $75,000 Suit Verdict

WHEELING, W. Va., April 2.—A $75,000 verdict for the plaintiff was returned in the $160,000 damage suit of the John F. Casey Company of Pittsburgh against the City of Wheeling. The case involved the building of the municipal water works here, the company maintaining that changes in plans following awarding of the contract necessitated additional costs in the erection.

The case had been in progress in the United States District Court since February 13.

Pair Wins Marathon Dance Begun Aug. 29

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP.)—Edith Boudreaux, of St. Louis, and Jack Ritof, of Joliet, Ill., last night won the dance marathon that started last August 29. They danced 5,148 hours and 21½ minutes. Frank and Marie Mickalowski, brother and sister, dropped out when judges tightened the rules to end the marathon.

The winners will receive cash prizes and "fan" money Friday night at a victory ball.

For the equal of this suite in construction, workmanship and beauty of design and finish, $200 would not be too much to pay. Of walnut veneers, other cabinet woods, with rich bird's-eye panels, carved trim and Venetian mirrors. (4 Pieces . . . $139.25). Terms: $8 Monthly

We have just celebrated our Silver Anniversary—a quarter of a century of service to the people of Pittsburgh. What a host of memories it brought back! What a renewal of old friendships! It has been like a great family reunion.

Among the interesting things that turned up was the photograph taken in 1906 of the first crew of employes at our original warehouse. There were only eight of them, and they took care of our entire business that first year. Our two faithful mules, Jack and Candy, also were a familiar sight as they toiled up hill and down delivering the furniture in that bygone day.

Who ever thought back in 1906 that today it would require scores and scores of men and 24 trucks to take care of the delivery of our merchandise alone! The larger picture, taken during our Silver Anniversary, illustrates in a most striking way the growth that has come to May-Stern's.

But the most significant fact is not that we have grown so large. Rather it is the fact that we have grown larger because we have served Pittsburgh better. And, although we are big, we have not lost the personal contact, the intimate friendship with our individual customers which has always meant so much to us, and perhaps to you as well.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

That story about the taxicab driver who adores an actress fascinates me . . . The poor guy . . . She was his fare one matinee day . . . He drove slowly—to make the ride last longer, they say. . . . She is one of the majors in the "Once In A Lifetime" show. . . . He went to see it that night, and came away more infatuated with her than before . . . He is terribly attentive in that he doffs his lid when he sees her and inquires after her health or "How did the show go today?" . . . On matinee days he parks his cab in front of her home—and waits for her . . . At nights he waits with his cab at the stage door, timing her exit, so that the cops won't make him keep moving . . . She cannot pay a cab fare . . . He wouldn't think of that! . . . What worries her more than anything is that he will keep adoring her through his mirror, instead of watching the traffic and the lights . . . Then again, what about the times she is in the cab with a gentleman friend, who likes to neck a little? . . . The driver would have her in his power . . . His jealousy might result in a dreadful accident or something . . . She ought to marry him—so he can forget her.

Mark Hellinger's "Moon Over Broadway" tome will be released on April 3 . . . A honey of a title, and every tale in it is spellbinding . . . It will probably make him so rich—he'll do what he has always threatened—go to Siam or some place so distant from the Broadway that cradled our so-called careers . . . The novelette tagged "True Love" is grand . . . "The Paper-Box Kid" is a classic. . . . It is the book I wish I had written . . . They all will get a good idea of the sort of guy he really is—by reading the dedication, which is: "To J. M. Patterson, A. J. Kobler and Frank Hause—they all took a long chance." . . . Wonder if he remembers those nights in the old Hotsy-Totsy? . . . Up against that bar, and because I wouldn't drink he'd say, as he lifted his glass: "Adventure, Walter! Adventure!!" . . . Today he is fat and a home-body . . . And I am the loafer . . . I'm glad Beatrice Lillie phoned to say she was getting better at the hosp . . . So many of her friends and admirers will be happier knowing that . . . Jimmy Durante works very hard in his show, and then does several strenuous routines at the Silver Slipper . . . You'd think he'd be weary and want to hit the hay—but no . . . He takes Mrs. Durante to the Malin Menagerie for dancing! . . . It is to chuckle . . . Down at Hot Feet's the bus boy and the doorman have their own cars . . . The bosses ride in the subway!

Wonder what a peace disturber has to do before the police interfere . . . That scene in Reuben's the other night was a pip . . . A raging drunk fighting at least half a dozen waiters, while the cop on the beat watched the proceedings through the window . . . You'd think Jimmy Walker would have a gray hair or so in his head, but he hasn't . . . I understand the Jewish Theatrical Guild, which wants him to be its guest of honor, is worried—because he hasn't accepted yet—and he stated in interviews he doesn't want any receptions . . . Dudley Field Malone may be on the same dais. . . . The crisp sarcasm will be delightful to hear . . . What a fight it is! . . . The nicest people who talk about the sitch-ee-ay-shun in their dining rooms sympathize with Walker . . . The consensus of opinion is that Jimmy's enemies are trying to even matters, not with him so much, but with his party . . . More people than the newspaper think skip the wordy attacks on him.

"I see," they usually say, "that the papers are picking on Jimmy again," and then they turn to the comic strips, dismissing the war with: "Name me one Mayor they haven't abused."

That story in a mag about the spies during the war is engaging stuff . . . Funny thing, though . . . One of the spies mentioned in it—who hasn't applied for citizenship yet—is working for the U. S. Government—wiring battleships . . . Wonder if Dorothy Parker caught up with the dirty looking mutt she followed down W. 52d St. the night of the Guild premiere? . . . She wanted to take it to a home for dog outcasts . . . I must remind her not to think up any more endings to her Nyorker reviews . . . Benchley is coming home next wk . . . No wonder Harlem is taking away most of the play from Broadway . . . The new Cotton Club show, "Wild Honey," by Dan Healy, explains it . . . It is the most extravagantly appointed floor show ever done by the sepia entertainers . . . The "Flyin' Man" number is the raciest lyric, startling even the raciest spectators . . . Something tells me that when Frances Williams returns to town and sees that petition which most of the principals in "The New Yorkers" show signed, asking Equity for permission to have her fired, a nose or two will be bleeding . . . She hits hard.

It must be awful to get mixed up in a murder case even though you had nothing to do with the affair . . . Don Skene, a reporter, best known for his aversion to butting into other people's business, was called up by the police who asked him if he knew Vivian Gordon. . . . They found one of his cards in her effects, it appears . . . A card he gave to a fellow, on which he had written the address of a speakeasy and a message to the doorman . . . Don thought he was the victim of practical jokesmiths, again, so he yelled into the phone: "Yeah, I killed her! Come and get me!" . . . They called all right, and were greeted by pails of cold water . . . His face still is red . . . The most elegant mansions of the rich make the nicest restaurants . . . Nearly all the homes in the 50s once tenanted by the toniest tribes now cater to those who can afford to sip and sup in style . . . Henry Clews' former castle is an example . . . Phil Baker doesn't carry an album to gather the autographs of the famous . . . He gets them to visit his apartment and they talk into a tube, the result being a record containing their voices . . . They tell anecdotes or sing or clown . . . Some day that collection will be priceless.

Funny how some readers remember people you mention . . . There are more inquiries about the nurse from Cleveland, who once wrote about her monotonous grind in the hospital there . . . And how she would give anything to swap two weeks of Broadway . . . Reminds me of the gal who once wrote a long letter denouncing Broadway—an intelligently prepared letter it was, too . . . In which she also told of a "deal" handed her by a gay guy . . . He was the reason she abhorred Broadway, of course . . . Had he been on the up 'n' up with her, the Street wouldn't have appeared so glum . . . Her letter, signed: "Miserable One," aroused so many people, who sent us over $400 in checks and currency for her, which she spurned . . . A year later the mail one morning contained a surprise . . . A marriage announcement . . . On it she had printed her real name, and:

"You wouldn't know me unless I explained," she wrote, "I am 'Miserable One,' I mean I was."

Wonder if she's happy now? . . . Never forget what the editor said at the time: If that letter is phoney and you are going in for fiction, keep it up. It sells newspapers" . . . So many other lads thought it was phoney, too . . . And because I took things more seriously in 1926, I carried her 16-page letter around with me and waited until the sceptics had read every word of it . . . 1926—almost 30 years ago!

Cosmetic Styling

As Presented By

V. E. MEADOWS

of Hollywood, California

V. E. Meadows, consulting cosmetician, will present a series of lectures to Pittsburgh women, under the auspices of the Sun-Telegraph, revealing the art of make-up as it is practiced by America's most beautiful women of the screen.

Each afternoon and evening, beginning Monday, April 6, and continuing through until Friday afternoon, April 10, Mr. Meadows will lecture on the delicate but not too difficult art of make-up that does not show and yet accents every charm. He will illustrate with living models each point in his lecture.

Mr. Meadows will give you information on: The care of the skin, scientific care of the hair; the care of the hands; costume colors with relation to make-up and the individual's personality; shaping the hair correctly to give contour to the face; every detail of correct cosmetic styling and the finer technique of successful make-up. What HE has done for Hollywood's beauties, YOU can do for yourself.

You are invited to attend these lectures as the guest of the Sun-Telegraph.

"Many beautiful women," says Mr. Meadows, "are concealing their beauty by the improper use of beauty artifices. Yet America's screen stars, who are not more blessed with nature's goods than other women, know how to use make-up to enhance that which nature gave them, and as a result are the beautiful women of the country. Every woman, young or old," he says, "can have the individuality of the screen star."

Mr. Meadows speaks with authority. He is America's foremost cosmetic stylist, and has been consulting cosmetician to most of America's screen stars and moving picture studios. He is coming to Pittsburgh to give a series of lectures to the professional women, the business women, the housewives and school girls of Pittsburgh, instructing them in the proper use of make-up: How to make-up for the evening, for the workday, how to bring out your own facial beauties and conceal your make-up, how to make your make-up stay on all day long!

You will enjoy every minute of these lectures, so don't fail to attend. As the number of seats is limited it will be necessary to obtain special tickets. They are free, of course, and will be mailed promptly if you will fill out and mail in the coupon below. The afternoon lectures (April 6-7-8-9-10, at 2:30 o'clock), will be held in PIRATE HALL in the WILLIAM PENN HOTEL; the evening lectures (April 6-7-8-9, at 8 o'clock), in the GOLD ROOM, FORT PITT HOTEL. Indicate on the coupon which lecture you wish to attend.

Mr. Meadows will impart the richness of his twenty years' experience in the art of make-up in this series of lectures sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. But remember, his engagement is limited to five afternoon and four evening lectures. Admission will be by ticket only and the seating capacity of the two halls is limited. Don't miss this opportunity to hear him and see him illustrate his methods with living models—revealing the undeniable charm of make-up that doesn't show but brings out all the beauty of the face.

Admission by Ticket Only—Send in the Coupon for Reservations Today—

JOCELYN TELLS FIGHT STORY

LOS ANGELES, April 2.—(AP.)—Jocelyn Lee, fiery haired screen actress, who is suing her director husband, Luther Reed, for divorce on a cross complaint, says it is all a mistake about her using explosive language. She testified:

"I never used a single curse word in my life, and I was never cruel to Mr. Reed."

In her version of the happenings at the Agua Caliene hotel where Reed and other witnesses testified she raised such a disturbance they were ordered to leave, Miss Lee said:

"He told me he was through with me and if I didn't like it I knew what I could do and where I could go. Then he punched me right on the chin and I sort of defended myself with an ash tray."

The trouble there really began, she said, when she discovered Reed had forgot to wear a necktie. When she paid $57.50 for a scarf Reed said that was too much. Miss Lee commented:

"Maybe it was, but you know how things are at those resorts."

Pittsburgh Visitor Falls, Dies in West

DENVER, April 2.—(AP.)—A man leaped or fell from a sixth-story window of a Denver hotel last night and was killed. Papers in his pocket indicated he was David G. Hathaway, insurance man, of 4400 Center avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

At an apartment at the Center avenue address it was learned that a David Hathaway had resided there for several weeks, leaving for Kansas City two months ago. He was on a business trip to Pittsbur his home being in Kansas City.

Dora Fehl, Actress, Sues for Divorce

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Dora Maughan Fehl, known as the "best dressed woman in vaudeville," filed suit for divorce from Walter P. Fehl, actor, in New York. She is appearing at a Chicago theater.

SALADS IN MODERN DRESS

A simple mixture of oil and vinegar served to dress the green salad of early days.

But later times have produced a great variety of fruit, vegetable, meat and fish salads each calling for its own style of dressing.

Amaizo Salad Oil however, is equally at home in any of a dozen or more salad dressings.

For instance; Mayonnaise, French, Russian, Thousand Island, Roquefort Cheese, Anchovy and Caviar— to name a few.

The delicate flavor and clear amber color of Amaizo Salad Oil make it en rapport everywhere.

Your grocer has Amaizo Salad Oil— and the other Amaizo quality products.

Look for the Amaizo name and gingham background design.

The Loudspeaker -:- By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, April 2.—Radio—its tremendous hold on the public, its vast value as a medium of entertainment and culture, its astounding growth, its unique asset as an instrument for publicity—continues to dazzle the musical maharajahs.

They know not from one day to another what is in store for them. They know only they have to be alert to what is going on in the electrical laboratories if they are not to be left behind in the procession. And so they are in a very frenzy to refashion their beliefs, their techniques to fit the new scheme of things.

They realize they can no longer scorn the microphone, for not only is it the most imposing avenue to the spread of culture but it embraces what seems to be a limitless gold mine. They intend to be, even though in several cases they do not know what it is all about, a part of the vast movement which is now making American music-conscious as she has not been since John Hancock laid down his quill.

The venerable Damrosch was the first of the musical archdukes to climb aboard the radio bandwagon. The microphone, the showmen of the studios were quick to sense, was right up to the Damroschian strasse. It lent itself admirably to his professional manner. His knowledge of music, combined with a rare gift for chatting charmingly about it, gave the radio men an inspiration. They would raise the appreciation of music in America by the simple process of dispatching Damrosch and his fiddlers to the microphone. And raised it they did.

Raised it to such a degree that other music bigwigs began to take notice, began suddenly to sound the praises of radio and its amazing value as a musical medium. Today there is not a single maestro who knows the difference between Von Weber and Von Tilzer who is not enlisted in the radio army. Of them all, next to Damrosch, Leopold Stokowski is giving the microphone the most thought—and the most words. He at least intends that no one shall say of him that he doesn't know what it's all about.

Stokowski even dropped his baton, his scrutiny of new manuscripts, his thumbing of old ones, to study radio gadgets at first hand. With the age of electrical entertainment upon us he will be, if necessary, as conversant with kilowatts as he is with clefs. His agile mind already conceives of possibilities of the musical future at which fellow-maestros probably snicker if they do not sneer.

He even believes that the symphony orchestra of tomorrow, as a direct result of broadcasting, will give concerts out of sight of its audience. What price television is of no concern to him. He backs up his belief by declaring—and it's strange no one has said it before—that people have become used to hearing music without seeing the musicians, that there is no more need for people to see the machinery that produces the music than there is for an automobile passenger to spend his time watching the operation of the motor.

And he goes on to predict that instead of looking at musicians scraping and bowing violins, blowing horns, pounding kettle drums, the audience will fix its eyes on changing panoramas.

Maybe so, maybe so. But the panorama will have to be interesting and yet not too distracting or our appreciation of the music will suffer. It would not do, for example, to show high life in Hollywood the while we are trying to catch the hidden meaning of Stravinsky. Some such restful spectacle as King George laying a cornerstone or Hoover shaking hands with the champion corn growers of Iowa might have to be substituted.

You either feel GOOD or you don't

Chief Connally had both these experiences

"I FELT weak and rundown. My color showed that my blood was very pale. I suffered from poor circulation. A Pathological Laboratory made a test of my blood, and the examination showed it to be 33% below normal. It was then that I decided to take a course of S.S.S.

"In about six weeks' time, after taking S.S.S. regularly, I had another blood test made, and it showed that my blood had been restored to normal. My appetite was greatly improved; so much so, that I could eat pork, and the like, without any discomfort. And to my surprise, my skin and complexion became clear as almost new, and like a child's.

"I think S.S.S. is the most wonderful blood medicine and tonic of its kind on the market today. It has so improved my circulation and the condition of my blood that it has made me feel like a young man again, although I am 56 years old."

C. P. Connally
Asst. Chief of Police, Atlanta.

You, too, will want this NEW STRENGTH

Every spring countless thousands take S.S.S.—the purely vegetable tonic—to build back their red-blood-cells so that they may have that new strength that makes for a keen appetite, firm flesh, a clear skin and greater resistance against infection and disease. You, too, will want to take S.S.S. for this very reason. Select the larger size as it holds double the quantity and represents a price-saving.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute.

RAY PERKINS, DIXIE SINGERS ON AIR

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

TONY'S SCRAPBOOK

It seems our readers have suddenly revived an interest in Anthony Wons, conductor of "Tony's Scrapbook," over the Columbia System and WJAS.

We have had numerous letters and telephone calls inquiring if Tony is an invalid. He is. He was left fatherless at the age of 12. His first work was tending a furnace at $3 a week.

At 15 he graduated to slicing off slats with a circular saw, attended business college at night, and just to guard against having any spare time, played the drums in a dance band after school.

Tony was diligent. His business course landed him a clerk's job in a sales office. Vacation time he took up cow punching on a ranch near Phoenix, Ariz.

The scene suddenly changed from Menasha, Wis., to France, where there came along a piece of shrapnel with Tony's name on it. He lay for a year in a hospital reading poetry, fiction, biography. As he read he clipped out what he liked best and pasted it into a scrapbook.

Returned to America, his lungs impaired by the shrapnel wounds, Tony thought he would try radio. He asked for a job at WLW and landed. In a year he received 100,000 letters.

FOR COLDS

Use Kleenex in place of handkerchiefs

Handkerchiefs carry millions of germs during a cold . . cause self-infection

No self-infection possible with KLEENEX
disposable tissues

THE drastic need for Kleenex has just received startling proof in the scientific laboratory.

A series of authentic tests reveal the handkerchief a source of danger during colds. Handkerchiefs used during colds were found to contain up to 4,170,000 disease germs!

Think, then, before you carry a used handkerchief back to your face! It is not only damp, soiled, disgusting — it teems with germs that must be destroyed, for your safety and those about you.

Use Kleenex—and destroy

When you use Kleenex, there's no danger of self-infection from handkerchiefs. You use Kleenex just once, then discard it. Germs are discarded, too. Kleenex tissues are exquisitely fine, soft and absorbent.

To remove cold cream

Use Kleenex for removing cold cream, beauty experts say. Its absorbency assures complete cleansing of the pores. Towels are saved from cosmetic stains.

Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store; in three sizes—25c, 50c and $1. If you have not tried Kleenex, send for a free trial package to the Kleenex Company, Lake Michigan Building, Chicago, Illinois.

Bacteriological tests show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 bacteria per handkerchief.

2. That organisms representative of those associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and soap water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

The above statements are based on tests conducted in the laboratories of Dr. Bertram Feuer, Chicago bacteriologist.

New Program of Spirituals on KDKA Tonight

Songs which generations of tobacco workers have sung as they worked in Virginia tobacco factories will be broadcast all over the country tonight at 8 o'clock by the Dixie Spiritual Singers over the network of the National Broadcasting Co.

This is the first time that the Dixie Spirituals have been heard over a network of radio stations. Tonight you can hear spirituals as they are sung by the natural voices of the workers themselves in the manner handed down for generations.

At 8 o'clock, the radio audience will be hooked up directly with the Edgeworth tobacco factory in Richmond to listen to this unusual group of singers. They do not pretend to be concert artists. Most of them work in the factory during the day. But critics who have heard them marvel at the stirring, primitive quality of this unique performance.

No records of these songs have been kept, except in the traditions and memories of the race which created them, and they will be sung by the Dixie Spiritual Singers in the old-time Southern way, without accompaniment.

This novel feature will be heard at 8 o'clock tonight over Station KDKA and every Thursday evening at the same hour.

NEWEST ACCESSORY SETS FEATURE COLOR CONTRAST

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 2.—The way of the shopper this season is to be beset by sets. No longer can a bag, a belt, gloves or shoes stand alone. The union that is strength has certainly permiated the section of the mode that deals with accessories and, consequently, every house is creating set upon set of novel complements to the costume. Color, in contrast, rather than blended, is the theme of these sets and they are designed with an eye to beautifying even the simplest outfit.

A SIMPLE white coat, with accessories in which blue, red and white are cleverly mingled and contrasted should provide a costume outstanding against a field of competitive coats, no matter how luxurious and elaborate they may be. Most women will invest in good sets that can be worn with many different outfits and these will prove a splendid investment to the woman who has many clothes or the one with but few.

LANVIN IS ONE of those who sponsor matching accessory sets in clever color contrasts and designs. We herewith send you a sketch of her very newest and most colorful set, which comprises scarf, belt and purse. Very dark blue crepe de chine, in heavy quality, makes the middle portion of the scarf, while the ends, wider than the rest, are composed of angular insets of red, white, and blue crepe closely covered with appliqued discs of white, blue and red suede leather. These discs are placed in contrasting colors on the crepe ground, red discs on blue, blue discs on white, and white on the red. They are whipped on with silk embroidery twist and a wide embroidered border edges the scarf. The flat purse and narrow belt repeat the motif idea of the scarf.

LIGHT BLUE BAKOU makes the Agnes hat, a drawing of which is shown. The extremely shallow crown and rolled back brim is set back far off the forehead. A band of dark blue grosgrain ribbon is fitted to the contour of the head and caught to the inner edge of the brim at intervals. The ribbon crosses the top of the forehead and ends in a loose tab at each ear.

MATE ACCUSES WIFE IN SUIT

Mrs. Flora S. Swaney, Hampton Court apartments, Dithridge street, threw a cocktail into the eyes of her husband, Walter G. Swaney, at a New York party, attempted to stab him with a carving fork, kicked him in the stomach and struck him twice with the heel of a slipper, once gashing his head and face, according to his bill of particulars filed in Common Pleas Court. Swaney, who is general manager of the Kerotest Manufacturing Company and now lives with his mother on Main street, West End, is seeking a divorce on grounds of cruelty and indignities.

He charged his wife with continual nagging, fault-finding, quarreling and exhibitions of violent temper, beginning in October, 1921, when he said he was compelled to move from their quarters in the Fort Pitt Hotel to another hotel to find peace.

Swaney granted his wife a monthly allowance of $400, in addition to providing an apartment for her, and has been forced to pay large debts she contracted, as the result of which he shut off her credit at stores, according to the bill. Last year Judge Elder W. Marshall fixed her allowance at $450 monthly, upon her petition. At that time she declared Swaney's income had been as high as $25,000 annually.

DRY MEN SEIZE AUTO, STILLS

When George F. Biernesser, 34, of Glenshaw, stopped his automobile in Butler street, Etna, for the purpose, according to prohibition agents, of delivering five gallons of moonshine to a nearby speakeasy, he was arrested by the agents who seized the liquor and his automobile. Biernesser was held in bond.

A raid at 3041 Spring way, where Joe Roberts, 29, was arrested, yielded, agents reported, a 150-gallon still and 30 barrels of mash. A 75-gallon still was reported confiscated in the home of Frank Tracosio, 39, at 850 Coast avenue, Beechview.

In the cellar of the home of George Miller, 47, Collier Township, the agents reported seizing 105 gallons of alcohol. Miller was released on his own recognizance for a hearing.

Protest Phone Rate Boost in Somerset

SOMERSET, Pa., April 2.—The Pennsylvania Telephone Corporation, of Erie, has taken over 4,800 telephones in Somerset County in the process of absorbing the Western Pennsylvania Telephone Company. Increased rates, effective yesterday, are being protested by subscribers, many of whom have filed objections with the Public Service Commission.

Saved by Cable After Missing Landslide

WHEELING, W. Va., April 2.—(AP.)—If Russell Gallagher's hair stood on end there was ample reason.

Gallagher, 31, a resident of McMechen, barely escaped from a landslide in the "Narrows," south of here, the sliding earth missing his automobile by a few inches. When the driver applied the brakes, the car skidded to the edge of a 150-foot bank, caught on a cable, and hung in the air. Gallagher was rescued by other motorists.

The landslide blocked traffic for five minutes on Route No. 2.

Train Hits Auto In Storm, 4 Die

Parrish, 48; his wife, Bessie, 25; and Mr. and Mrs. David Davenport, parents of Mrs. Parrish, all of Perrysburg.

BEFORE YOU LEASE!

The man who purchases a motor car with fine appearance as its chief recommendation finds himself in real trouble when dependable service is required.

The same thing happens to the individual who signs the lease for an apartment without first assuring himself as to the scope and detail of service his rental check purchases.

Those experienced in apartment residence realize that they are, essentially, purchasers of service—for it is service that provides the comforts, conveniences and economies which distinguish this modern mode of living.

All of which explains why Schenley Apartments, when asking attention to rental availabilities, particularizes with regard to service facilities.

A duplication of Schenley service would be utterly impossible, anywhere, without duplication of the physical plant.

By considering the various attributes of which Schenley service is composed one can readily understand why this apartment service is on a par with the highest-class hotel service.

First—The apartment service employs 125 specialized attendants.

Second—The service facilities of the Hotel Schenley dovetail with the apartment service.

Third—The diversified Schenley Shoppes make the apartment group a community complete within itself.

The rental office, on the premises, is now prepared to show lease availabilities we expect to have for rent as of May 1st. These range from 3 to 9 rooms. Appointments made from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.—Sundays until 5 p. m.

William Pfarr

They are telling the Rockne stories now, and one of the best was about the football player who was an Adonis on the side.

Halfway through the season the player had become recognized as a star of the first water, and the recognition went to his head. He fell for the pretty things the pretty girls said about him, and he sought their company; he became, rather than a rugged football star, a dancing man.

Rockne jerked him out of the lineup and benched him. As each succeeding game started the player whose star was fading would ask the Rock, "Do I start today, Coach?"

"Not today," Rockne replied, "I'm saving you."

This went on for a half-dozen games. On the day of the last and biggest game of the season the player asked the stereotyped question.

"Nope," Rockne answered, "I'm saving you."

"Why, coach, this is the last game of the season. What are you saving me for?"

"The junior prom," Rockne answered.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 2.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

It's very seldom you find any good that comes out of the war, but I was talking to one of California's sanest and most conservative businessmen, Mr. Robert C. Gillis. He remarked:

"The only investment that has proven sound during all this mess is the Liberty Bond."

So the old three-minute speaker was telling the truth and didn't know it. But the tough part about it is everybody lost theirs by having to put 'em up as margins on things that was supposed to be sound. During the Coolidge cuckoo days, they were considered the lowest form of investment. When you look back on things now, you wonder why everyone in America escaped the insane asylum during that time. JOBLESS GET GARDENS FREE

Detroiters Arrange to Give Seeds, Equipment and 1,500 Acres for Planting

DETROIT, April 2. — Detroit's jobless are going into the gardening business this spring at no cost to themselves.

Mayor Frank Murphy's plan to furnish them with small pots of ground near their homes, and provide seed and the necessary implements to carry on their gardening has been received with such enthusiastic response from leaders in industry, civic affairs and in official circles that already several thousand unemployed are assured fresh garden products for their tables this summer.

CO-OPERATION HELPS

A gardening committee, appointed by the Mayor, brought the plan to the attention of leaders of the city, and within a short time had enlisted the aid of dozens of concerns, real estate agencies and hundreds of individual property owners.

Seed companies agreed to furnish seed and plants, implement houses offered free use of tools, and more than 1,500 acres have been offered for use for the gardens by their owners. Coupons printed in newspapers afford the unemployed an opportunity of stating their locations, choice of location for the gardens, and the number of persons in their families needing help. Welfare Department agents then investigate their applicants to make sure they are eligible for the grants.

TWO CLASSIFICATIONS

A committee is working on plans to prevent vandalism.

The land preparation will be under the direction of F. A. Robinson, general superintendent of parks and boulevards.

Gardeners will be placed in two classifications—those unable to buy materials, and those able to pay a small sum for them. A tentative planting scheme which would entail a cost of $1.25 for seeds for each 40x100-foot garden has been offered by G. V. Branch, director of city markets.

HARRISBURG, April 2.—(AP.)—V. J. Oldshue, of Pittsburgh, yesterday took over his new duties here as publicity director of the State Department of Revenue.

King of Belgians Impressed Foch by Bravery in Crisis

In yesterday's instalment, Marshal Foch told of the first phases of what has often been called "the Race to the Sea." After the halting of the German onslaught at the Marne and the retreat of the invading armies in September, 1914, the object of the Allies was to check the German drive on the Channel ports. One of the important factors was to effect a union of the scattered British, French and Belgian forces in the north to oppose the Germans who had captured Antwerp on October 9, 1914, and were advancing. In today's instalment, Marshal Foch describes his first activities in this effort.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Mott.

CHAPTER V.

Antwerp was occupied by the German army on October 9, 1914, and the Belgian army began its retreat in the direction of Ecloo and Bruges. The British Admiralty had dispatched the 7th Infantry and the 3rd Cavalry Divisions under Gen. Rawlinson, France a brigade of marines under Admiral Ronarc'h, toward Antwerp for the purpose of succoring the Belgians, but these forces had been unable to proceed beyond Ghent and were now falling back covering the right of the Belgian army.

That army first gained the region Ostend-Thourout-Dixmude-Furnes. Here Gen. Pau, attached to the Belgians as representative of the French Supreme Command, joined it on October 10. He found the troops worn out by the siege of Antwerp and the subsequent retreat. Their retirement was continuing on Calais and Saint Omer, when Gen. Joffre endeavored (but without success) to divert them toward Ypres and Poperingle, so that they might join the Allied armies in the enveloping movement then in process.

When I learned of the Belgians' intentions, I asked Gen. Pau to prevail upon them to fix Dunkirk as their base of operations rather than Calais, as this would place them nearer to Belgium at the very moment when the Allied armies were about to advance into that country.

Marshal Foch

It was decided, therefore, on the 11th, at Ostend, that all the depots and untrained men would be sent to Dunkirk and that the six divisions constituting the Belgian army would be assembled in the region Nieuport - Furnes - Dixmude. They would still be covered on the east by Gen. Rawlinson's British divisions and Admiral Ronarc'h's brigade of French marines.

The Belgians were not to retire unless attacked; in the event of being obliged to retreat, they were to take up a final defensive position behind the Yser and the canal from Dixmude to Ypres, keeping touch always with that last named town.

This retention of the Belgian army along the coast isolated it to such a degree as might very well prove fatal to it. Moreover, the important center of communications presented by the town of Ypres would have to be abandoned, and this might deal a mortal blow to the entire Allied plan.

Belgians Suffer

Army Is Target of Long Bombardments

Accordingly, on the 12th, I instructed Gen. Bidon, the military governor of Dunkirk, "to take under his orders the 87th and 89th Territorial Divisions; then, having established himself in position on the Poperinghe-Ypres road, he was to endeavor to make contact in the direction of Zonnebeke and Roulers with the Allied forces to the East (Belgian, British and the French marines).

He was to so maneuver as to keep in touch with the British forces arriving that day on his right at Lecke; in addi-

UNFAIRNESS CHARGED BY DRIVERS

Declare Union Employes Discharged Without Due Cause by Parmelee Firm

Union taxicab drivers will vote tomorrow to determine whether to strike in protest against alleged discrimination in favor of nonunion drivers, Fred Shaffer, business agent of the Taxicab Drivers' Union, said today.

Decision to vote was reached at yesterday's regular meeting, Shaffer said. The polls in the union headquarters, Fifth avenue near Ross street, will be open all day tomorrow beginning at 9 a. m., he announced.

Discussing the vote, Shaffer said:

"We've got to do something. In spite of its agreement, the Parmelee Transportation Company is firing union men without sufficient cause. Already about 50 of our drivers have been let out and replaced by nonunion men."

Among the drivers discharged recently was Michael J. Burns, president of the union. Burns refused to discuss his discharge for publication, but he was one of the leaders at yesterday's meeting in the discussion of alleged unfair practices of the company, it was said.

A representative of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers will come here Friday to survey the situation with local union heads, according to Shaffer.

Mt. Lebanon Women Ask For Gifts to Needy

An appeal for food and clothing for families of Mines Nos. 2 and 3, near Mt. Lebanon, was made by Mrs. Agnes R. Joyce and Mrs. Charles Munhall, heading the Mt. Lebanon Relief Organization, formed before the Christmas holidays to aid the needy in that section.

Children, especially, are suffering, according to Mrs. Joyce today. She said:

"Little children are ringing doorbells in Mt. Lebanon every night, asking for food and clothing. They walk several miles into town and often appear at homes as late as 10 p. m. Suffering among them is acute. Donations for them can be left at the Mt. Lebanon Municipal Building.

"There are children in Mt. Lebanon who will have more Easter eggs than they will need. Wouldn't it be a joy to the little ones of the mines if those with plenty would share with them on Easter morning? For scores of them there will be no eggs."

Pittsburgh Women to Get Hollywood Secret

He is regarded as one of America's outstanding authorities on beauty.

Mr. Meadows will speak each afternoon during his stay here in Pirate Hall, William Penn Hotel, and in the evenings in the Gold Room, Fort Pitt Hotel. Admission will be by tickets, which will be given free by the Sun-Telegraph upon receipt of a filled-in coupon found elsewhere in today's Sun-Telegraph. This is necessary due to the fact that the number of seats in the halls where Mr. Meadows will speak are limited. First come first served, so fill in the coupon and send it to the Beauty Editor.

Mr. Meadows will give information on the care of the skin, scientific care of the hair, care of the hands, costume colors with relation to make-up and the individual's personality; shaping the hair correctly to give contour to the face; every detail of correct cosmetic styling and the finer technique of successful make-up. Regarding feminine beauty Mr. Meadows says:

EXHIBITION OF 'TENAFLY WEAVING'

MISS ANNA M'CALL. MISS WINIFRED MITCHELL

SOME OF MISS MITCHELL'S EXHIBITS AT THE WINCHESTER SCHOOL, FIFTH AVENUE

Beauty in Weaving Art Shown

By PENELOPE REDD

An exhibition of weaving by the Tenafly weavers is now on view at the Winchester School at Fifth avenue and Clyde street. There one may find the most primitive of the arts adapting itself vigorously to new needs.

Penelope Redd

Almost all of the weaving done by our ancestors that had any claim to inclusion as decorative art was used for ceremonial occasions only. Today decorative art is taken for granted as a necessary adjunct.

Thus we find the finest weaving prepared for everyday uses. Table runners in the traditional honeysuckle design, and bags for every conceivable costume are included.

We are told that no place in the world is there quite such a group of weavers as those of the Tenafly looms.

Founded in 1915 by Miss Winifred Mitchell, who took up weaving to interest a friend, then a convalescent from illness, the looms soon became the high spot of interest in the village of Tenafly, N. J.

Miss Mitchell was thoroughly familiar with the historic textiles in the European museums and likewise with the work of the peasants.

At first, she was obliged to import two teachers from Queen Alexandra's school of weaving at Sandringham, England. They were given a year's leave to help organize the Tenafly weavers.

Now the looms have become a village industry which attracts travelers from afar and weavers from all parts of the world. A designer creates a multitude of varying designs from the simple elements of warp and woof. The weavings have an uncanny combination of the sturdy and the simple raised to the level where they are best appreciated as an exotic thing by the cultured.

The exhibition is open from 10 in the morning to 5 in the afternoon, daily.

PROFITS SEEN IN PRIVATE OPERATION

Management of Markets And City-County Building Discussed by Realty Men

A drastic change in the operation of the city's three wharf parking stations is expected, following action of City Council yesterday in authorizing the Department of Public Works to survey the area available for parking purposes, and the law department to draw up a lease on which to receive bids from private operators.

The Building Owners and Managers Association and the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board were represented in a hearing before Council.

James W. Bamford, presenting the wharf situation for the building owners, quoted figures showing the city is receiving around $8,000 a year net for the properties and private interests will pay $50,000 a year in advance.

OFFER AVAILABLE

An offer for this amount on a lease with a 30-day cancellation clause and a 15-cent parking limit is already available for the city, Bambord said. He declared the building owners are in favor of low priced parking, but declared that even at the present rate the system has not been yielding the revenue that would be derived under careful operation.

Council also made progress on the Market House and City-County Building problems. A recommendation made by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang last spring for the improved operation of the markets was brought out of the files and will be presented in ordinance form as soon as Councilmen John S. Herron and Robert J. Alderdice are able to be present.

PAYROLL DISCUSSED

Members of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board and the Building Owners and Managers discussed with Council the payroll and other operating expenses of the Diamond market.

Charges that the City-County Building is over-manned and improperly cleaned were read, and action deferred until the realtors and building managers have an opportunity to check further into new operation figures submitted by city authorities.

A resolution was passed granting the Real Estate Board authority to look into city leases to find out if the city is getting as much as it should for its properties.

READY TO TEST POLICE RADIO

If the weather permits, tests will be made Monday with the new 400-watt transmitter installed in Mt. Washington Police Station for broadcasting emergency and other police calls to city squad cars.

Finishing touches were put on the set yesterday by F. C. Millard and H. T. Fagen, of the Western Sound Products Company. The set is exactly the same as the Beltis Field ground to plane transmitter for aircraft communication.

Only Mt. Washington and Central Police Station operators can go on the air. An emergency call made by any person to Central Station will be immediately broadcast to the nearest squad car.

Thirty city squad cars, each police station, the Liberty Tubes and Point Bridge will have radio reception.

WHARF PARKING M'INTYRE TOPIC

Street traffic congestion relief through the provision of more parking space on the municipal wharves was to be discussed by City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre before the Monarch Club in the William Penn Hotel at luncheon at noon today.

The City Bureau of Traffic Planning of which McIntyre is chief engineer, and the off-street facilities section of the Better Traffic Committee, of which Edward B. Lee is chairman, have been studying means by which the utility as well as the appearance of the wharves might be improved.

CITY EMPLOYES CONTRIBUTE $22,874 TO JOB AID FUND

WARNING GIVEN AGAINST FAKE SOLICITORS

'Racketeers' Seeking Profit By Imitating Name of Association, Rae Says

Contributions to the Allegheny County Emergency Fund for stabilization of employment, made by departments of the city government, according to A. E. Braun, executive chairman, are:

Bureau of Fire, $7,058.61; Board of Water Assessors, $181.50; City Home and Hospital, $1,280.95; Civil Service Commission, $100.75; Department of City Planning, $319.24; Department of Public Health, $1,932.50; Department of Public Welfare, $950.94; Department of Public Safety, $10,279.07; Mayor Charles H. Kline's office, $510.11, and the city treasurer's office, $216.00.

Employes of the city have contributed a total of $22,874.67 to date toward the fund, according to Braun.

WARNS AGAINST FAKERS

James Rae, president of the Chamber of Commerce, last night warned against charity racketeers who he declared are attempting to capitalize on the campaign. All suspicious calls of solicitors purporting to be working for "emergency associations" should be referred to the chamber, Rae said. He urged all contributors to the fund to make their checks payable only to "Roy A. Hunt, treasurer, Allegheny County Emergency Association." He said:

"It has become obvious that racketeers, in order to divert funds for their own use, have formed organizations with names very similar to that of the Allegheny County Emergency Association. While there is no doubt that some of the money they collect does go to charity, the solicitors who collect it receive excessive commissions that are illegal.

USE TELEPHONE

"The professional charity solicitor makes his request by telephone, and from now on any suspicious calls from men or women purporting to be working for emergency associations or emergency funds, should be referred to the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. Do not permit yourself to be persuaded into giving your contribution check payable to some individual.

"The only recognized solicitors in this coming campaign are volunteer workers who will receive no pay for their efforts. They are divided into two groups—one, called 'Division A,' is under the general chairmanship of Walter C. Carroll; the other unit, 'Division B,' with T. P. Gaylord, director and former president of the Pittsburgh Chammer of Commerce, as general chairman, is comprised of 300 members of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce."

POLICE GET NEW AID IN CRIME DETECTION

Laboratory Established For Detecting Clues In Homicide Cases

Special instructions to police officers, together with an appeal to the public to refrain from touching or disturbing in any way bodies, weapons or anything having to do with homicide cases, were issued by Coroner W. J. McGregor today in setting in operation the new county ballistic laboratory which brings to Pittsburgh a new method of scientific crime detection.

By disturbing or touching anything about the scene of a crime, the coroner points out, valuable evidence might be obliterated which otherwise might be brought out in the laboratory which has been equipped with instruments for the study of ballistics.

The laboratory has been established for the purpose of assisting all agencies called upon to investigate crime and other causes of unnatural or violent deaths throughout the county.

Bertillon Operator William McCready, expert from the city detective bureau, has been of invaluable aid in setting up the equipment, according to Dr. McGregor.

SUSPECTS HELD IN ARSON QUIZ

Three men were being held by city detectives following their arrest this morning during an investigation into an alleged attempt to fire the plant of the Schwartz Baking Company at 1816-18 Bedford avenue.

The prisoners, held on suspicious person charges, are Morris Schwartz, 51, of 1706 Center avenue, owner of the company; Jacob Hornstein, 46, of 511 Herron avenue, his bookkeeper, and Solomon Kramer, 62, of 1 Monaca place, a laborer employed in the plant.

Detective Sigmund Gorskey, of the bomb and arson squad, made the arrests shortly before 5 o'clock this morning, taking the men into custody in their homes after he had conferred with Battalion Chief Frank Harris who entered the establishment during the fire. Chief Harris said that three wooden containers containing an inflammable liquid were found in the establishment.

JAIL SUICIDE'S KIN SOUGHT

Relatives of Frank Janis, aged about 55, who was found dead in Monessen jail, where he had applied for lodging, were sought today by Pittsburgh and Monessen authorities.

Janis, said to be a former Woods Run resident, is thought to have three sons living in Pittsburgh. He applied for lodging at the jail Monday night, where he hanged himself during the night, police say.

HAM TASTES BETTER WHEN BOILED OR BAKED WITH SUGAR

Sugar Combines Ideally with Salty Tang of Smoked Ham

There are few meats that can surpass ham in taste-appeal and popularity. When it comes from the oven glazed with sugar and dotted with cloves, it is tantalizing to have to wait for a pink, savory-sweet slice.

To develop the flavor of ham to the utmost, put half a cup of sugar and half a cup of vinegar in the water in which your half or whole ham simmers. Then after the ham is tender let it remain in the water until cool. The result is a delicious, savory flavor.

Ham, however, is but one of the many foods where sugar can be used to advantage. In seasoning meat stews and pot-roasts, canned or fresh vegetables, a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt greatly improves the flavor. Salt by itself merely overcomes flatness. It is the sugar that "brings out" the flavor. Most foods are more delicious with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

FOCH DESCRIBES BELGIANS' BRAVERY IN DEFEAT

tion he was to organize a strong defensive position at Ypres, so as to check any hostile advance from the direction of Armentieres, Comines or Menin.

Out of these heterogeneous, changing and unstable allied elements, it was hoped and intended to create, at once, starting on October 14, a safe place of meeting and a center of resistance upon which the Allies could base their future action.

The state of the Belgian army also had to be taken into account. During two months it had been subjected to a succession of the hardest blows (Liege, Namur and Antwerp), not to mention prolonged bombardments. For such trials this army was less prepared than any of the others.

Up to 1914 it had known nothing but peace. The neutrality of Belgium, guaranteed by the great powers of Europe, had become an article of faith which not only removed all menace of serious war from her army, but brought about a limitation of its functions.

From the point of view of home affairs, the army was merely the guardian of public order; from the point of view of foreign affairs, its duty consisted in guarding the country from invasion until such time as the guaranteeing powers could come to her defense and take under the protection of their armies the maintenance of her independence. But the lofty sense of honor which animated the King and the nation caused the Belgians to throw themselves into a tremendous struggle which a formidable neighbor had carefully prepared.

Inundation
Country Flooded to Impede German Advance

It was this reality, so different from anything it had ever had reason to expect, that the Belgian army now had to face. And the nervous force of its soldiers was all that remained to replace the deficiencies of their armament.

The uncertainty I felt regarding the situation on the North Sea coast and the amount of resistance we could offer there to the progress of the invasion decided me on the 16th to make a rapid visit to that region with which as yet I was unacquainted.

Accompanied by Maj. Desticker and Lieut. Tardieu, I proceeded on the morning of the 16th first of all to Saint-Omer, whither Marshal French's headquarters had been moved. I asked him to insure the co-operation of the British Navy against the German right in the direction of Ostend; also to divert the enemy attacks from the Belgian army by advancing Gen. Rawlinson's corps from Ypres in the direction of Roulers.

I then went on to Dunkirk. A large stock of supplies had been collected there which it was essential to protect from a sudden raid, so I ordered up a brigade of Territorials and, in conjunction with Gen. Plastey, the new military governor, I assured myself that the defenses were making good progress and that everything was in readiness for effecting the inundations.

The fresh-water sluices had already been opened and the water was now spreading, the salt-water inundations could be started whenever desired, as the canals had been filled up to high water level.

At Dunkirk I met Monsieur de Brocqueville, the Belgian Prime Minister. After discussing with him the local military situation and the general political outlook, we decided to go together to the Belgian army headquarters at Furnes in order to see the King.

Meets King
Gen. Foch Confers With Belgian Monarch

For it was now necessary to take a decision of paramount importance, namely, to prevent the Belgian army from entirely abandoning Belgium. Its retreat must be stopped and it must hold on to a portion of its native soil, however small the strip might be. Monsieur de Brocqueville was an able, far seeing statesman, full of decision. He agreed with these views and undertook to support them.

Once more, on the road from Dunkirk to Furnes, we had to pass through a pitiful throng of inhabitants fleeing before the invasion. A dense mass, composed of women, children and young girls, of nuns, priests and old men, filled the roads, pressing onward in the confusion of a hurried flight, worn out by the fatigues of a ceaseless march and of nights passed in the open fields under a cold October rain.

Furnes was crowded with Belgian troops, exhausted by the terrible bombardment of Antwerp and eight days of retreat. The King, commander-in-chief of the Belgian army, had established his headquarters in the town hall.

Accompanied by Lieut. Col. Brecard, the head of our mission with the Belgian army, and preceded by M. de Brocqueville, I made my way to headquarters. Here I found Gen. Hanoteaux, the Belgian chief of staff, and Gen. Wielemans, the deputy chief. They were still suffering from the disturbing effects of the long and painful retreat.

I explained to them the reasons which justified the halting of this retreat and the means which could be employed to oppose the enemy. The German units on the Belgian front consisted of second call troops, army corps composed of reservists. The infantry undoubtedly was not as good as that which had just been stopped and driven back in France, but there could be no doubt that it would be accompanied by a large force of artillery.

By digging in, the Belgian army could parry the enemy's blows and provide a barrier which French troops would soon reinforce.

A few moments later the King received me. He was in the Salle des Echevins, a large, finely decorated room, with a huge fireplace, whose heaped-up logs gave out a warmth most welcome on that cold, penetrating day. This was the first time I had met this illustrious personage, the very embodiment of honor and duty.

Shred
Only Small Slice of Belgium Was Left

I found a certain amount of embarrassment in approaching him, determined as I was to defend with all my might the common cause in which were bound up the safety of Belgium and the fate of the Allied battle then in progress. His response to my sentiments was not long in coming.

Belgium was now but a shred of territory to which its government and its army were clinging. If they retreated another 12 miles their country would be lost completely. The enemy would have it entirely in his power to dispose of as he wished; the country might even disappear from the map of Europe. For was it sure that it could be given a new birth in the treaty of peace?

The King recognized that the Belgian army was much exhausted, but he believed that, at the call of their commander-in-chief, the troops would find new energy with which to defend what remained of their native soil. They could be counted upon to hang on to the Yser and thus give time to the Allied forces to come to their aid.

Ample proof of the soundness of this reasoning was soon to come. Fresh decisions were taken, new dispositions made, and the reorganized Belgian army proceeded to defend the Yser from Nieuport to Dixmude and Boesinghe; it was there that the French troops found them when they came up in support.

Defenses
Dunkirk Environs Flooded As Protection

On the day following this interview, the King visited all his divisions. He reminded them that the Belgian army was now disputing the last parcel of their country's land and that they must die rather than give way. He informed the division commanders that if any one of them retreated without a formal order, he would be relieved of his command on the spot.

Thanks to these dispositions, it now seemed possible to check the invasion which was moving down the coast.

In pursuance of these ideas, before leaving Furnes on the evening of the 16th, I dispatched a hurried message to Admiral Ronar'h defining his role at Dixmude:

"Under the present circumstances any idea of maneuvering is out of the question and your tactics must be confined purely and simply to resisting on your actual positions.

"With this end in view, every possible means should be used for providing shelter and defenses for all your troops.

"As to the line of conduct to be pursued, your mission is to stop the enemy in his tracks and above all by fire action. In view of the strength of your forces and the means at your disposal, which enable you to occupy a wide extent of front, you should find no difficulty in holding your ground.

Nothing short of a formal order from your superiors or the capture of the whole of your position by the enemy will justify you in evacuating your position.

"Needless to say, that I count upon you absolutely to fulfill this mission."

Let me add here that the admiral and his sailors performed their task in a most glorious manner.

Finally, in order to provide for every contingency, I caused the defenses of Dunkirk to be supplemented by inundations which stretched for seven or eight miles in front of the town, thus forming an obstacle along the coast behind which fresh resistance could be organized, should the Belgian line be broken.

Such was the defensive sys-

How to Relieve Catarrhal Deafness Or Head Noises.

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels, you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment, which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from May-Liggett's, or your druggist a 1 oz. bottle of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. If nearly ninety per cent of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh, there must be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple home treatment.

tem we were able to rapidly throw together for the purpose of stopping the enemy's march "nach Calais" and frustrate his new plan which no longer aimed at Paris, but at the Channel ports. This outcome was due to the King's quick understanding and his determination, as he himself affirmed on the 16th of October, to consecrate his entire army to the task.

Retiring
Belgian Army Needed to Be Reformed

The hesitations of some of his subordinates were in marked contrast to this resolute attitude of the King. For, according to Belgian generals, there was nothing the Belgian could do but retire from the struggle.

I returned in the evening to my headquarters at Doullens, 75 miles from Furnes. Here I wrote a report of the day's doings to the commander-in-chief:

"I have just come from Furnes, general headquarters of the Belgian army. On my way there this morning, I stopped at Saint-Omer, headquarters of Marshal French, and I have asked him:

"(1) To urge his government to order a naval squadron to operate off the coast at Ostend against the German right.

"(2) To advance Rawlinson's corps from Ypres in the direction of Roulers, in order to divert the German attack from the Belgian army.

"I then proceeded to Dunkirk and saw the Governor. He informed me, and I believe it, that the place is in a good state of defense. The fresh-water inundations have been effected and the salt-water ones are ready.

"Belgian refugees of every description are now being taken care of without difficulty. The same conditions obtain at Calais.

"I then went to Furnes. The Belgian army is established along the line of the Yser. It has been ordered to reorganize there and to defend itself with the utmost energy. The King and the Prime Minister seem determined to adopt these tactics and to see that they are carried out.

"The British army is continuing its advance on Courtrai. Today it has again made some progress.

"P. S.—All the same, whenever you have some really reliable troops available to send to the left of the Belgian army, it would be well from every point of view to do so."

"We first noticed the trouble when our baby was two months old. It started with small red pimples on her left cheek and almost covered it. The breaking out itched badly and she scratched and irritated it. When she was awake she used to rub it until it would bleed. The trouble lasted one year.

"We tried different remedies but they failed to help her. We began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in about a month she was completely healed, after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Eugene C. Vey, 215 Spring St., Bellevue, Pa., April 9, 1930.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Being Friendly to Folks Brings Happiness

What's the secret of popularity?

Whoopee . . . wise cracks . . . a jazzy line?

Little Jeanne thought they were. And she tried her best to be Fulla Fizz—but somehow she couldn't. And like many another bewildered, unhappy youngster, she sat back in the corner watching the Wild Women strut their stuff—wondering, wistfully, why life was so unfair.

Liked His Manner

But we told her she was all wrong—that quiet folk, provided they were friendly and warm, were just as much in demand as zippy ones. Perhaps more so. And here comes Celia Pearlman, with the grandest little talk on popularity—why it is and why it isn't, that has ever breezed into this column. Listen, and you'll learn plenty.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I read the letter from Jeanne who complains that she isn't popular because she isn't jolly enough and I would like to tell her — from experience — that she's all wrong. You don't have to know all the latest wisecracks, or do all the laughing and kidding in the world, in order to have friends.

"Before I met my sweetheart, I thought as you did. I went to parties galore. I was very, very jolly, I was carefree, and always on the go. I sang, danced, wisecracked, played a number of musical instruments and, all in all, I liked to be the 'life of the party.'

"Then I met him. And I decided that there was lots more to living than just whooping it up. What attracted me to him was his reserved manner . . . his rare sense of quiet, intelligent humor . . . He was not as noisy or as silly as the people I knew. And when he did say anything, it wasn't just idle talk of girls in general, flirting, dancing or parties, but something worth listening to.

Studies Self

"And because I admired those qualities in him, I began to look myself over, and do a little calming down on my own account. It wasn't long before he took me with him to some of his college dances, banquets, and other entertainments, and to many of his fraternity affairs.

"There, instead of meeting a lot of harum-scarum boys and girls I met a number of intelligent, pleasant, sophisticated and attractive ladies and gentlemen.

"At one affair that I went to I was introduced to a girl who, if she were with my crowd, would have been welcomed at every party. She laughed a great deal (generally over nothing at all). She talked a lot. She had all the dancers off the floor while she did an exhibition dance. In other words, she made a real show of herself. But nobody seemed to admire her—in fact they almost snubbed her!

"And watching her, I suddenly realized that I was looking, really, into a mirror—I was seeing myself as others had been seeing me. And I saw how that type didn't fit in at all with intelligent, honest-to-goodness people.

Treated Differently

"Then, too, I noticed how differently Jack's friends treated me when I changed my ways. They respected my every wish. They treated me with such courtesy! More like a regular woman, and less like 'just one of the girls' as the boys of my old crowd would have termed it.

"And one thing is sure. I enjoy myself now more than I ever did before. I honestly like people, and I feel that they like me. I try to be sincerely sympathetic and friendly, and interested in what people are doing and feeling and thinking . . . and what 'line' hasn't fallen down on me yet. I don't believe it ever will.

"Jeanne—they always did say 'the grass grows greener on the other side of the fence,' and I guess you are just bothered by that feeling. But don't be. Dig around and find out what's on your own side. You may be surprised!

"Personally, I've tried both sides . . . and I've chosen yours . . . the grown-up side. I am only 19½, but I have grown up—in that way. You are 22. Stay grown up. Learn to be really and happily friendly to folks, and I know you'll soon be as happy as I am. Don't go back. Go ahead!

"CELIA PEARLMAN."

Great stuff, isn't it?

Try it out in your own crowd.

'EASTER LILIES'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"Observe the Rising Lilies' Snowy Grace!"

Times may change, to sometimes our sorrow, and sometimes, to our joy, but Easter, and the sudden and absolute shaking-off of a dead winter that comes with it, seems to spring as new each year, and as blithely, as the lilies that grow with it—immaculate, shining, new.

Times may change, but the dear little Easter-bonnet springs eternal in the gay mind of the little feminine Easter singer. She can mingle dreams of her pretty hat, and pride in it, with the beautiful songs and the holy light of Easter Sunday, as innocently as any young lamb.

Even the fashion of the Easter-bonnet may change—but the dear little bonnet itself goes on—shining and fresh as a daisy, new and important each spring—and the pretty face under it is always there too, singing praise on Easter Morning.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Man Usually "Has" to Go First

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a lady and a gentleman are together in a public elevator is it proper for the gentleman to walk out first and then assist the lady, or should the lady walk out first and the gentleman follow?

Please also tell me whether this applies to any public vehicle, such as an automobile, subway and so forth?

H. S.

Usually when a couple are leaving an elevator the man steps aside and allows the lady to go out of the elevator first. If, however, the elevator is crowded and the gentleman stands near the door it is often easier and of more convenience to both if he steps first from the elevator and helps her as she steps out.

When they leave a street car the man goes first and makes a way through the crowd—as he usually has to—so that it will be easier for her to follow. The man steps first from the automobile, so that he will be in position to help the lady get from the car.

A Birthday Letter Is Best Form

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I read your column every day and certainly enjoy it. Good luck!

We girls have an argument we would like you to settle for us. I have a "pen-pal" whose birthday will soon be here. I have never seen her, although I hope to see her this summer. Now here is the argument. Some of the girls say that a birthday card would be the only correct way to remember her birthday. Others say an impersonal present would be correct. Will you please tell me who is correct?

MARY.

I agree with your friends, that a birthday card or a birthday letter would be in the best form.

Eating a Deviled Egg Sandwich

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me whether or not it is correct to eat a deviled egg sandwich with a fork? (It is on fresh white bread.)

S. C.

Yes, or with a small knife and fork, if you prefer.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Noel Begins to Show Strain

Noel was silent for a long minute after I told him that he must recognize and accept Mary's love of dancing and of the limelight. And his movements through the dance for which he had asked me were mechanical as those of a robot. I was as silent as he, for I did not wish to limit the force of what I had said by explanation, but I felt as if I must cry out in sheer suspense of his decision.

Finally, with an explosive sigh, he seemed to come to life again, and he broke into rapid speech, guiding me into a corner farthest away from the other dancers and standing still while he spoke.

"I knew all that long ago," he said, "and I thought I was prepared—not to like it—I can never do that—but to endure it because of my love for Mary."

"Noel! Noel!" I shook my head at him. "Did you never hear what a delightful old English essayist once said. I'm not sure that I have every comma, but the quotation runs something like this: 'Heaven help you, madam, if your husband does not love you because of your foibles instead of in spite of them.'"

He looked at me puzzled for an instant, his "one-track mind" evidently finding difficulty in switching to what I was saying. Then his eyes flashed in comprehension, and a tender-amused smile softened the rigid lines of his mouth.

"I see what he meant," he said, "and—I think—I follow his precepts for the most part. But—I can't deny that this performance tonight has upset me. Can't you see, Mrs. Graham, what it means—what my father is—"

"Trying to do?" I snatched the words from him, for I wished to end the colloquy before some stray pair of dancers could circle near us. "Of course, Noel, we all see that. He has brought Colin Cameron here tonight in the hope, first, that his personality would attract Mary and win her from you. Failing that—and I think your father knew there was no chance of that happening—he has planned to have young Cameron play upon Mary's love of dancing and of the limelight—call it her vanity if you wish—until she will be receptive to some theatrical offer which young Cameron—backed, of course, by your father—will make her."

Noel stared at me.

"Oh, you see that, too," he said at last. "That was what I meant when I asked you to 'wait and see.'"

"I know it was," I told him, "but there was no use in telling you so then. We both might have been mistaken. Now that we find we are not there is but one thing to do."

"And that is?" Noel asked eagerly as I hesitated.

"Mr. Underwood has a slogan which fits right here," I returned, smiling. "'Hold everything!' That's the only request I have to make of you. You've been perfectly splendid this evening, registering approval of Mary and pride in her, and dancing with the other girls only enough to keep you from the suspicions of being angry at young Cameron. Just keep that procedure up until the dance is over, although I think I'll let you off most of the dancing. You're still a semi-invalid, you know."

"I'm all right," he protested sturdily, but I saw the cruelly etched lines of extreme fatigue around his mouth and made a quick decision.

"Walk with me into the other room." I made the words a command, rather than a request, and he obeyed with the docility of a well-trained child. When we were beyond the sight of the other dancers I took my hands from his arm.

"Look here, Noel," I said with emphasis. "I did not realize how much this thing has taken out of you. Now I shall be able to manage Mary much better if you aren't in evidence for a little while. These youngsters are having such a hectic time that they would miss no one save one of their own number. If—when Mary asks for you I shall tell her you went upstairs for a little while."

"Better say if," he interposed with a twisted smile.

"You know better than that," I said sternly. "And I want your promise to go to your room and lie down until Mr. Underwood or Mr. Graham comes for you. I shall not let you stay too long, and I'll promise you this much—Mary will make no decision concerning any dancing engagement until she has consulted you. Will that do?"

He bent over my hand.

"You ought to know how implicitly I believe in any promise of yours," he said. "And—I shall be glad to be alone for a little while. All—this—is—too—much—for me."

-:- The Beauty Box -:-

By HELEN FOLLETT

Once or twice a year every head of hair goes on a spree and moults. It is just cleaning house, getting rid of rubbish. But if hair falls continually, something should be done. A 10-minute scalp massage once a day will help it to produce more spinach.

Nail biting is not only a disgusting habit, but one that is a menace to the health, since germs and germesses lodge in the nail eaves. A thorough weekly manicure is the cure for this trouble. It is when nail edges are rough and hangnails are present that biting goes on.

It is touch-and-go between the long and short bob. The summer rush for short hair has already started and good pigtail material is better amputated. It has been impossible for enthusiastic hair-growers to throw the short bob into the dud-dud pile. It is still chic when beautifully water waved, and cut correctly. It simply won't be downed.

Only a silly woman will hesitate to wear glasses when her eyes are in need of them. Eyestrain can make a girl sick all over. It has a bad effect upon the central nervous system. It produces headache. Squinting the eyes to adjust the optic nerve to distance treks thread lines in the tissues underneath.

When a woman looks into her mirror and sees a countenance that is welted with sagging muscles, she longs for the days of fairy godmothers so that she might wish for a new face. She can't get a new one, not even from the cosmetic surgeon, but she can remodel the old one by generous allotments of a heavy cream, by tapping lightly with the finger tips every night, by bathing with cold water every morning, by wearing an "uplifting" expression. Head up, eyebrows up, lip ends up!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Eczema Often Traced to Digestive Disorders

Nothing is more distressing than to see an infant or young child suffering from eczema. To prevent their scratching and tearing the inflamed skin, it may be necessary to strap the arms of young infants suffering from this skin trouble.

It is pathetic to watch the anxious mother who frantically tries all remedies for her baby's affliction. Salves of every description are tried. Often these salves do more harm than good.

Eczema may be seen in adults as well as in babes, but it appears to be more stubborn when it attacks children. This trouble makes up 30 per cent of all skin diseases. It is described as an acute or chronic inflammation of the skin, accompanied by much itching and burning.

Eczema may be caused by a variety of disturbances. Disorders of the digestive organs, such as dyspepsia and constipation, are important factors. This is particularly true in the infant who has been weaned at an early age, or where there is difficulty in the adjustment of the bottle formula. This is another reason why mother's milk is most desirable. Babies who are breast fed rarely show signs of eczema.

Certain nervous disturbances are frequently the forerunners of this disease. An infection may lower the resistance of the body and make it more susceptible to skin disorders, including eczema.

In addition, we may include certain external factors as causes for skin irritations. Where the skin is exposed to strong chemicals, such as acids or certain soaps, this condition may be produced. Some individuals possess extremely sensitive skins. If exposed to medication, such as the application of iodine, formalin or bichloride of mercury, they soon show signs of eczema. Other individuals, if exposed to severe heat or cold, contract this annoying skin condition.

In children, eczema is usually produced by a sudden change in the diet, or a disturbance in digestion. It is difficult to remedy when it depends on the wrong diet. It is hard to find what element in the food is causing the disturbance. Sensitiveness of the child to one particular food is sufficient to produce eczema. Its withdrawal from the diet is followed by a clearing up of the condition.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, April 3

The sidereal operations for this day hold auguries of disruption, delays and obstructions, with a general disturbance of the affairs, both business and personal. While correspondence or contracts may present some favorable angles, on the whole it may be difficult to make much progress or profit or to circumvent the forces of opposition and frustration. Be careful about change or travel.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of frustration, delays and postponements, affecting the personal as well as business affiliations. Correspondence or contracts may have some advantageous developments, but make changes or journeys with discretion. In private relations an element of secrecy or intrigue dominates.

A child born on this day may be restless, nervous and unsettled, prone to postpone and temporize. It may be clever and intellectual and socially may lean toward the intriguing or curious in its associations.

NEWS AND COMMENT ABOUT THEATERS AND THEIR ATTRACTIONS

Real Cows in Swiss 'Tell' Recall Other Things Too Real in Art

By GEORGE SEIBEL

If you are going to Switzerland this summer, you can see "William Tell" played at Interlaken with real cows. About 250 actors from the villages surrounding Interlaken will take the human parts in Schiller's great drama of liberty, but these human characters seem to be merely secondary, if a letter from the management may be taken as an index. The letter gives assurance that "the spectators will not simply hear some tinkling of bells behind a mountain world of canvas to indicate the return of the supposed cattle from their summer pastures high up in the mountains. They will in fact see a big herd of the finest Bernese Oberland cows."

George Seibel

That leaves only one thing more to be desired. A pedigree proving that these cows are lineal descendants of "brown Liesel," specifically mentioned by Schiller and known by her melodious bells.

NEVER SAW ALPS

It's a curious fact about "William Tell," which is as popular as a guide-book throughout Switzerland, that the dramatist Schiller never even saw the Alps.

It's another curious fact that this drama used to be forbidden by the Russian censor. It said too much about liberty.

And "Othello" used to be forbidden by the Turkish censor. It told of a Turkish defeat by imaginary Venetians.

Strange are the ways of censors! If the present Italian censorship law were enforced, even a performance of "Punch and Judy" would be impossible in Italy.

HERE'S REAL REALISM

The veritable cows in the "Tell" performance at Interlaken bring to mind other instances of realism in art. One of the queerest is told by Otis Skinner among his memories of early days at the Philadelphia Museum.

There was a wax-works gallery in which a large representation of the Lord's Supper pictured the Apostles satisfying their hunger with onions.

Skinner does not recall whether they were in tears, as might be expected.

But I am assured by a Talmudic friend that at the Passover feast in Jewish homes this week, horse radish is put upon the table and eaten to stir tearful remembrance of the Exodus from Egypt, which is commemorated by the feast.

Stage feasts are seldom very appetizing, the property man being a poor cook, but Marie Wainwright used to play "As You Like It" with a huge haunch of smoking venison that made the mouths of the gallery gods water.

At a later date I recall an incident in which E. H. Sothern and H. J. Heinz played leading roles. Sothern was giving Sudermann's biblical drama, "John the Baptist," in the Duquesne Theater in Penn avenue. In a box sat H. J. Heinz with some clerical friends.

At the close of the play I went back to see Sothern.

"Perhaps you noticed that the banquet for the Roman envoys in the last act was not especially sumptuous," said Sothern. "The property man could not find the banquet, and we had to serve them a few apples."

"If you had let me know," I said, "the Roman envoys need not have starved. H. J. Heinz was in the audience and would no doubt have been glad to furnish them some of the 57 varieties."

As if to verify my statement, there was a knock at the door of the dressing-room and Mr. Heinz was announced with his friends.

But he was merely calling to pay his respects to Sothern, whose acquaintance he had made on an ocean journey.

DREISER AND STUDIO AT ODDS ON FILM OF HIS NOVEL

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, Premier Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 2.

"They can't even begin to suggest the psychology of 'An American Tragedy' in a motion picture of ordinary length."

Thus, Theodore Dreiser frames his objection to the scenario that Paramount has drawn up from his most famous work.

Since arriving in Hollywood, the novelist has dodged all interviewers, even keeping his place of residence secret. I came upon him in the Casino at Agua Caliente, famous Mexican resort. Abandoning his play at roulette, he talked of his disagreement with Paramount over the film that is now being made under the direction of Josef von Sternberg.

Phillips Holmes.

"My objections to the scenario were the sole purpose of my coming to California," he admitted. "You simply can't tell the book in the limited treatment they have given it. I have stated my objections and they have been very courteous—you know how these fights are. I shall stay here a day, a week, there's no telling."

The author states than an earlier scenario, prepared by S. M. Eistenstein, the Russian director, thoroughly met with his approval. It called for many more reels, however.

Phillips Holmes does very well in that part of the picture which Dreiser has seen, he declares, but he favors the work of Morgan Farley in the New York stage version, and even of Leslie Fenton, who appeared in the coast version.

Of Josef Von Sternberg, the novelist merely remarks that he might have been more polite.

The film troupe working on the picture is due back from location tomorrow. Things may happen then.

Every week, all Fox scenarists get a mimeographed sheet of human interest stories that have appeared in the daily papers . . . The movies have a way of breaking up teams. Buddy De Silva pulled away from his partners, Brown and Henderson, and now the famous "G" Sisters have split, Chara going to M. G. M. for a part in Buster Keaton's German version of "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" . . . Though she thinks Wallie is a fine pilot, Mrs. Beery left by train last Friday to join Wallie at the end of his transcontinental flight. The star will be back here by April 5 as he has to start "Sea Eagles" . . . Will Rogers is another film person who has winged his way eastward.

NEW SCREEN, STAGE ATTRACTIONS FOR THEATERS HERE

"Trader Horn," film version of the African jungle story of the same name, will open a two-week engagement in the Nixon Monday. There will be two performances daily, afternoon and evening. Seats are now on sale.

"Blossom Time," the operetta, returns to the Alvin this Saturday night for an engagement that will continue through Easter week. Robert Lee Allen again appears as Kranz, the court jeweler, a role he has played for the last eight years. John Charles Gilbert, who has portrayed Franz Schubert for four years, and Joseph Toner, who has played Von Schwind for a number of seasons, also will be in the cast.

In "Stepping Sisters," announced by George Sharp for the Pitt next week, a show girl, who has made the social register through her marriage to a rich man, is brought face to face with her former dancing partner. Her efforts to maintain her dignity in this embarrassing situation provide the comedy of the play.

NEW FILM BOOKINGS

Buster Keaton, Charlotte Greenwood, Reginald Denny and Cliff Edwards form the comedy quartet in "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," the talking screen adaptation of the legitimate stage farce of the same name, which comes tomorrow to the Aldine.

Bram Stoker's weird story of human vampires, "Dracula," will be presented, beginning Saturday, in the Harris.

Ben Lyon and Ona Munson are co-featured in "Hot Heiress," comedy romance of a young steelworker and a society debutante, which comes to the Davis screen Saturday and to the Enright screen tomorrow.

Feeling Bad Today? Listen, Here's Good News

What's the use in kidding yourself? If you feel tired and run down, you ought to do something about it before some serious illness strikes. You ought to build up your body so it's one hundred per cent fit.

The way to do this, say doctors, is to take cod liver oil. But don't take cod liver oil the old-fashioned liquid way. Take it the modern way in tiny tasteless tablets.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are made from the vitamins of the finest cod liver oil that Norway can produce. You get all the healthful benefits, but no nasty taste. That's why doctors so widely prescribe them. That's why Good Housekeeping Institute has given them its seal of approval.

If you want to lead a happy, healthy, normal life, accept this good advice. Go to your druggist and get a box of McCoy's today. They're just what the doctors say you need. 60 tablets—60 cents.

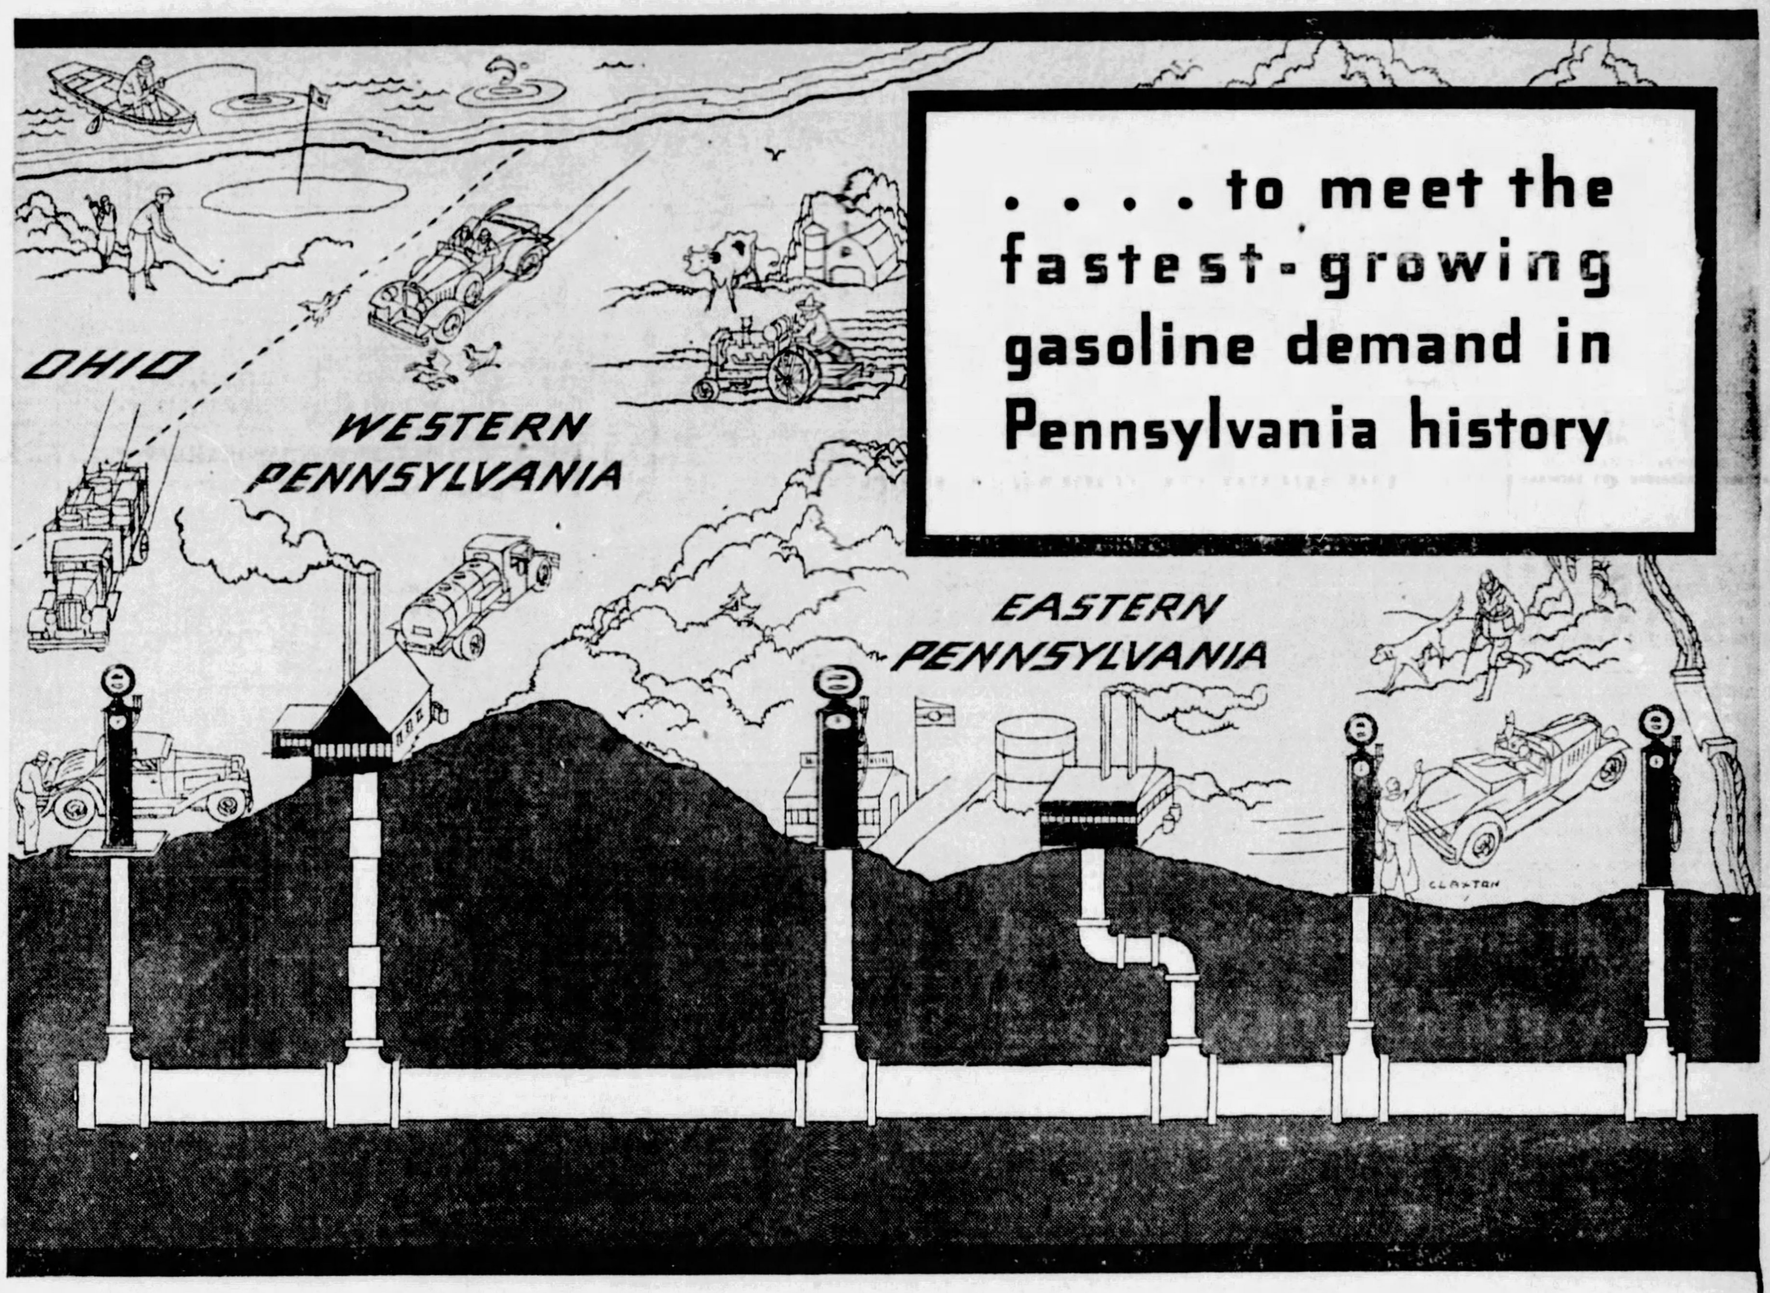
The World's First GASOLINE SUBWAY..



. . . . to meet the fastest-growing gasoline demand in Pennsylvania history

RUNNING across the entire State of Pennsylvania today is a subway 505 miles long that no traveler has ever heard of—the world's first "subway" to carry gasoline—the Tuscarora Pipe Line.

This new, fast method of delivering gasoline was devised by engineers to meet the demand for "Standard" that has spread in two years with record-breaking speed all over Pennsylvania.

The "subway" brings you gasoline from one of the greatest oil refiners in the entire world—the Bayway Refinery of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Here many of the greatest improvements in gasoline have been discovered and perfected. Here is the accumulated experience of fifty years of oil refining. Here, today, is being produced the most popular gasoline ever used on the Atlantic seaboard.

This gasoline is one of the most completely and carefully refined fuels made today. It contains no "sulphides" (you can tell them from the odor!) to damage your motor, no gum to foul the valves and pistons, no "heavy ends" to cause crankcase dilution. Because of its extra volatility "Standard" gives you quicker starting and pickup. Its anti-knock qualities are kept well above the average of all other gasolines except those selling at a premium. And it is absolutely uniform—wherever you get it! "Standard" is better gasoline. No wonder it has won Pennsylvania. Try a tankful and see for yourself.

Remove BACTERIAL-MOUTH
Though you may brush teeth and gums faithfully, Bacterial-Mouth threatens beauty and health so long as you breathe. It is caused by germs that sweep into the mouth. They attack teeth and gums and defy the ordinary dentifrice. To have sound, sparkling white teeth and firm, pink gums you must guard against this offending condition that confronts all of us. One dental cream removes Bacterial-Mouth by killing the germs that cause it. That dental cream is KOLYNOS.

Whiter

Teeth 3 shades Whiter in 3 days

USE the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique for 3 days—a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, morning and night. Then look at your teeth, fully 3 shades whiter.

In 10 days the improvement will be so marked you will never again say that white teeth are a gift received only by a fortunate few.

Dentists have long advocated the Dry-Brush Technique as the one way to use a dental cream full strength and keep brush bristles stiff enough to clean every tooth surface and massage gums properly. Kolynos permits this approved technique.

This highly concentrated, double-strength dental cream is unique in action. It multiplies 25 times when it enters the mouth—thus a half-inch of Kolynos is equal in effectiveness to 12 inches of the ordinary toothpaste. It becomes a surging, antiseptic FOAM that makes wetting the tooth brush unnecessary.

You can feel Kolynos work. It foams into every pit, fissure and crevice.

Germs that cause Bacterial-Mouth and lead to stain, decay and gum diseases are instantly killed. They vanish and the entire mouth is purified. Kolynos kills 190 million germs in 15 seconds, 424 million in 60 seconds.

This amazing Kolynos FOAM removes food particles that ferment and cause decay . . . neutralizes acids . . . washes away tartar and the unsightly mucoid coating that clouds teeth.

Easily and quickly, it cleans and polishes teeth down to the naked white enamel—without injury. And for 3 hours after each brushing this cleansing, purifying process continues.

So long as you use the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique teeth will remain gleaming white and sound, gums will be firm and healthy.

Look for Results in 3 Days

If you want whiter, sounder teeth and firm, pink gums start using Kolynos—a half-inch on a dry brush, morning and night. Within 3 days teeth will look whiter—fully 3 shades. Gums will look and feel better. Your mouth will tingle with a clean, sweet taste. Buy a tube of Kolynos today.

PIRATES BATTLE MISSIONS

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Robins' Park Cut Down. Cannot Replace Rockne.
Two Fields Shortened. Bucs Finding Stride.
Tauscher Making Good. Boxer vs. Wrestler.

SACRIFICE PLAYING SPACE FOR SEATS

THOUGH THEY FINALLY awoke to the necessity for doing something to check the slugging evil, and took half-way measures to change the ball by raising the seams, the major league baseball magnates remain blind to another factor that has had as much as the rabbit pill to do with the home-run burlesque in the big circuits. That is the cutting down of the ball parks, reducing the playing area and hurting the game by making homers easier in order to squeeze in additional seats that will mean extra dollars at the boxoffice.

Frank B. York

Instead of putting a stop to that harmful practice and thus protecting the sport, they continue to carry it further. It develops that still another ballyard will be reduced in size this year, the steps taken by President Frank B. York and the other Robin owners to increase the seating capacity of Ebbets Field in Brooklyn being of a nature that will mean a diminished playing area through the shortening of two of the three outer gardens.

REPORTS OF THE work now progressing rapidly to extend the double-deck grandstand at Ebbets Field completely around left and center fields show that a lot of playing space will be sacrificed for increased gate receipts. Twenty-two feet will be taken from the depth of left field, reducing it from 382 to 360 feet, and 62 feet will be lopped off the playing area in center field, making the distance there 404 feet instead of 466, as formerly.

It was announced originally that the space covered by the wooden bleachers would be sufficiently wide for the new concrete and steel grandstand extension. Now it is explained that the contractors could not carry on the work along those lines and required more space for the new structure. It isn't hard to guess that when it came down to choosing between extra seats and playing area the club owners expressed a preference for the seats. So now another park is cut down and home-run hitting is made easier instead of harder.

BROOKLYN'S CENTER FIELD will be the shortest in the National League with the exception of Cincinnati's, which is 393 feet. Even at Baker Bowl in Philadelphia center field is four feet deeper than at the Flatbush park. From having the longest left field in the circuit, Brooklyn now falls behind Pittsburgh, 365, and Chicago, 364 feet.

Right field at the Robins' park is only 296 feet deep. The only shorter right gardens in the National are those of the Giants and Phillies, 258 and 280 feet, respectively.

IT IS SAID that the Brooklyn club made close to a million dollars last season, and with a stronger team this year the owners evidently figure that the time is ripe for a bigger killing. The new stands are to be ready about the first of May, possibly a week earlier. The wise boys will now tell the world that because the Brooklyn magnates are putting in new stands it's all fixed for the Robins to win the pennant and get in the world series. It might be remarked that when the same club was in first place last September the owners started work on extra boxes and temporary seats to take care of world series crowds, but when the season ended the Robins were in fourth place.

Walter Tauscher

ANOTHER FORMER PIRATE pitcher who is being counted upon to help a different club in its pennant endeavors this year is Walter Tauscher, righthander, drafted by Washington last fall from Dallas in the Texas League.

One veteran on the Washington club who is enthusiastic about Tauscher is Al Schacht, coach and comedian. Schacht, a former pitcher himself, had a good chance to observe Tauscher's pitching closely while serving as umpire behind the plate in a recent game. He is confident the former Buccaneer will make good for Walter Johnson.

"Tauscher convinced me he is quite a pitcher," Schacht says. "He showed me plenty, including first-class ability to field his position. He has a sort of screw ball that is deceptive, and a fast ball that will fool some of the best of them.

"This fast ball is speedier than it looks to the batsman. It kind of sneaks up on him, and takes a sharp, not very wide, break. I think he should be able to get by under the main tent in fine style."

WITH CLOSE TO 75 former Notre Dame players coaching in various parts of the country, Knute Rockne's system of football, the most popular that ever came into the game, will live long after him, but it won't show the old improvement and uncanny shifts to meet changing conditions from year to year that it could always be expected to show while the master strategist was living and active. He was years ahead of the average coach, ahead of the game itself. He started his football and his thinking where the others left off.

IN SPECULATING ON the outcome of a game in which Notre Dame under Rockne was a principal it was necessary to figure football as far as it went, and then to figure Notre Dame and Rockne beyond that. Other coaches have always admitted that opponents meeting a Rockne eleven for the first time didn't have a chance in the world to win. They could watch his plays and read about them, but when they went up against them on the field for the first time they discovered they didn't know what it was all about.

In the attempts already made to guess the identity of Rockne's successor as Notre Dame's coach, practically every star player ever developed at South Bend has been mentioned. The school authorities, of course, in their grief and out of respect to the dead genius of the gridiron, have not yet given it a thought. No matter who is chosen, filling the place will be impossible. It was said some time ago that in being appointed coach under the new order of things at Penn, Harvey Harman had stepped into the toughest spot in football, but his assignment is an absurdly easy one compared to that of the man who attempts to replace the matchless Rockne. There are hundreds of coaches, but no more Rocknes.

LOCAL FANS BELIEVED it was only a question of time until the Pirates would prove that those early defeats at the hands of the Cubs and Tigers didn't mean anything, and the team's success in trimming the Bruins in the final two games Tuesday and yesterday showed that the confidence of the home rooters was not misplaced.

Far more encouraging than the victories is the way star players who were missing a year ago are performing. Pie Traynor's five hits yesterday, for instance, with a double and a home run included, show a third-base situation in pleasing contrast to that of a year ago when Pie was unable to play at all on account of an attack of pinkeye. And that's saying nothing about Lloyd Waner.

George Godfrey

FAILING TO FIND an opening in this country where they could profitably put to a test, or pretend to be doing so, the question as to whether the fighter or the wrestler would triumph in a mixed match, they have succeeded in selling the idea to France. George Godfrey, giant Negro heavyweight boxer, and Wladek Zybszko, 240-pound wrestler, are to meet in a mixed bout in Paris, Promoter Rinaldo Gardini announces. Godfrey will use regulation boxing gloves and all the punches he knows. Zybszko will be permitted to use all the tricks of his trade, save the strangle hold. The affair will not take place until June 8, which gives everybody plenty of warning.

these latter who muttered something about the dumbness of that Swede, Anderson.

"Never mind that," snapped Rockne, rolling his cigar between thumb and forefinger, with gesture that was most characteristic of the man's nervous, restless temperament. "Never mind that, at all. I know something infinitely worse than a dumb Swede. It's a smart Norwegian!"

I doubt exceedingly whether Anderson was ever called upon for any further explanation than a simple recital of what had happened on the last day but one that Rockne voluntarily left his football teams for literary, or other pursuits.

Knute Rockne

And because this story of the Rockne I like to remember, is not especially a biography, but rather an attempt to portray phases of his amazing career that might have been lost in small print, because there was so much about him to read in headlines, I am going to jump four years that intervened, and relate a series of incidents that were bound up in the spectacular season of 1930, when Rockne assembled, and coached to a national championship, what has been regarded by many, most certainly by me, as the greatest Notre Dame team of all time.

This team had scored amazing victories against six opponents, including Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh, and finally Pennsylvania, when Marty Brill and his supporting cast, piling up 60 points, left eastern football experts groping for superlatives that the western scribblers had not worn to shreds already, in trying to portray the deeds of Rockne and his team.

Just around the corner was the game with Northwestern, and the corner was occupied by the Drake Bulldogs.

SCOUTS NORTHWESTERN

Drake, invariably well coached—Rockne afterwards paid it the tribute of having the best attack of any team Notre Dame played all last year—invariably gave Notre Dame a stout contest.

Rockne wanted to be there for that game.

But coming from all along the battle line of Northwestern, there had been trickling back to South Bend reports that Dick Hanley had in action a team that was likely to be the strongest any Notre Dame team had ever played.

Northwestern had been scouted, of course, by Rockne's aides. But Rockne wanted something more than that. He wanted to see Northwestern himself.

That he debated with himself long and earnestly, I know, before he made his decision. In fact, there was no assurance that Rockne was coming to the Northwestern-Wisconsin game, until he appeared in the press box.

Anderson, back at Notre Dame, establishing himself as a line coach inferior to none, was left in charge of the team.

It is certain that Rockne gave some thought to that Carnegie Tech incident of 1926. Anderson thought of nothing else.

With the Northwestern game a week away, and surely a menace to whatever aspirations Notre Dame had for an unbeaten season, it was imperative that Rockne's team get by as placidly as possible in the struggle with the Bulldogs.

That may, or may not have been the instructions Rockne left with Anderson.

And thus Rockne came to Evanston.

Following the usual procedure, Anderson started the "shock troops." At the end of the first quarter, when the news reached the Northwestern press box that the score between Notre Dame and Drake was 0 to 0, I recalled that information across to Rockne.

Down in South Bend, Anderson was rushing in the regulars, and before long they scored. But so did Drake.

Bulletins were called to Rockne, almost as rapidly as the evolutions of his inevitable cigar.

COSTLY BATTLE

Anderson took care of that. But Notre Dame won the game at a cost that came close, a week later, to being the equivalent of a defeat by Northwestern, the loss of a prospective national championship, and any other details incident to a victory by Northwestern over Notre Dame.

This, as far as I know, is the first time that this feature of the situation has appeared in print.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: GILMAN LOW LIFTED 1,006,000 POUNDS IN 34 MINUTES 35 SECONDS—Gilman Low, formerly an artist, author and health director of New York City, in his prime was one of the most perfect specimens of manhood in the world. During his career he established 35 world records for endurance lifting. His notable "million pound lift" was accomplished by lifting 1,000 pounds 1,006 times in 34 minutes 35 seconds. A complete account of it is contained in Physical Culture Magazine, September, 1903.

PA. BOWLERS SCORE POORLY

BUFFALO, April 2.—Six Pennsylvania teams fell miserably in their attempts to lift any of the American Bowling Congress prize money yesterday. Luty's Recreation, No. 2, of Ridgway, hit 2592 and the No. 1 team rolled 2406.

Oil Creek Refining, of Titusville, offered a 2575 and Koolmotor, of the same city, a 2412. Tome's Five, of Kane, totaled 2419, and Arcade Cafe, of Kane, 2509.

Huntington and Parkersburg, W. Va., pinsters rolled into small bits of prize money. R. Wright and F. Reid, of Huntington, combined for a doubles of 1151 having games of 424, 362 and 365. In the Huntington singles, H. Edwards finished with a brace of twin centuries for a 603. The 580 of J. Dozier, of Parkersburg, was best count for that city.

The Millionaires from Lower Merion are expected to arrive here today, and will put up at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. The main body of Lower Merion rooters, about 500 strong, will come Friday.

Dorais Tells of Rock, Buddy and Roommate

By CHARLES E. (GUS) DORAIS

Athletic Director, University of Detroit. (Written for the Associated Press.)

DETROIT, April 2.—I want to say a word about my Rock, my friend, my roommate, in the hope that I may in a way give thousands as good a picture as I can of Rock as I knew him intimately. I would like to show the humanness, the kindness, the sympathy, the loveableness that was his. To me he was not the great international figure that thousands mourn today, but my best remembrance is as an ambitious poor boy who dreamed dreams and made them come true.

It was in 1910 that I came to Notre Dame from Chippewa Falls, Wis. I registered and was assigned my room. I found it in Sorin Hall a little later and found another already there, making himself at home, a chunky towheaded fellow with keen blue eyes and a ready smile. He looked me over, and I looked him over.

He said:

"My name is K. K. Rockne, Chicago."

I told him mine. We shook hands, and that was the beginning of one of the finest friendships of my life. We roomed together during the rest of our school careers and spent the summers together working at Cedar Point.

When were were getting located, Rock said:

"Where will we put your trunk?"

I replied:

"Never mind about my trunk, I didn't bring one."

"Shake on that," said Rock, "I guess we're about even on this world's goods."

NICKELS SCARCE

We played around together a good deal, and many was the time we walked the two miles to South Bend and back to save the precious nickels that were so scarce for him and for me.

Those walks were always interesting, because Rock was one of the most entertaining talkers I ever have listened to. I can recall a remark of his that shows well his thirst for knowledge even back in those days.

"Folks wanting to learn something should talk about things, not people." That statement has always stayed with me.

Rock was always doping out new ways to fatten our slim treasury. Every once in a while we would sneak away from the campus and take part in club smokers in the near vicinity, Rock as the fighter and I as his second. It is good to remember that on no occasion of this kind was he ever returned anything but winner of both the meager purse and the bout.

Another time during our first year Rock heard that the players in the band and the orchestra received a small stipend for their services, so he sent home for his flute. And for a while after the arrival of the famous instrument the days and evenings were made hideous in our room by a serious

With only two dissenting votes, it was decided that any amateur hockey player who tries out with a professional team or who even practices with professional players, will be suspended by the Amateur Association.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—Back to San Francisco today, the Pirates will close their California training with five games to be played in four days in the Seals' stadium. Games with the Missions, of the Coast League, are scheduled for this afternoon and tomorrow. The Seals will be met Saturday and Sunday, morning and afternoon battles being slated for the last date.

Ervin Brame has the Pittsburgh slab assignment for this afternoon. In announcing Brame for the task, Manager Ens stated he would let the tall Kentuckian work the full distance, provided he gets along in a satisfactory manner. Jewel will select four or five of his first-choice sharpshooters, who will be asked to follow this plan in the remaining exhibition contests. The skipper said the time is ripe now for the pitchers to go the full distance.

DOWN CUBS, 11-7

The Buccos got some sweet revenge on those pesky Cubs before leaving Los Angeles last night. Hammering some of Rogers Hornsby's flingers in a relentless manner, the Freebooters came from behind to achieve an 11-to-7 victory. Thus the Buccos were able to gain two triumphs in the seven battles staged between the two clubs here and in Los Angeles.

Capt. Pie Traynor again starred at the plate for the Buccos. The Pittsburgh captain turned in five hits, including a homer and a double, which were made in one inning. Traynor's card for the three games showed 10 safeties.

The last clash of the major leaguers brought five homers. George Grantham and Pete McClanahan hit for the distance, while Manager Hornsby and Zach Taylor drove the rocket out of the lot for the Cubs.

M'CLANAHAN GETS HOMER

McClanahan's four-sacker was the most startling of the quintet. The Texas League star went up to hit for Glenn Spencer in the fourth. Pete measured the first pitch for a drive across the left-

(Baseball's Comedian)

BILOXI, Miss., April 2.—I knew the Robins would finally sign Dazzy Vance. They got 10,000 extra planks in centerfield this season, and they might as well be right back in the lumber yard without Dazzy on the team. Dazzy is the last Robin of spring and they had to shake $23,000 worth of sugar on his tail to get him. That's a bundle of jack in any language, but in Brooklyn it's a sinking fund. At such a salary Robbie will have the Dazzler selling peanuts in the grandstand on his days off.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 2.—The Windsor Bulldogs will make their last home appearance in the International Hockey League's annual title series here tonight when they meet the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets in a game that will mark the visitors' fifth start in the playoffs and the locals' fourth effort to lift the crown.

On Saturday the battle scene will be shifted to Duquesne Garden, Pittsburgh, where the Bulldogs will help the Jackets to close their campaign, and next Tuesday the grand finale will be staged at Fort Erie, Ont., where Buffalo is to be the host to Windsor in a postponed struggle.

JACKETS DISTANCED

When tonight's warfare gets under way Windsor, Buffalo and Cleveland will be in a virtual deadlock for the series lead, with Pittsburgh out of the running. The fact that the Jackets have been distanced has not served to enhance the locals' peace of mind, for the Steel City skaters are known as a fighting aggregation that never has been known to give up before the final gong. Cleveland and Buffalo were defeated in their series appearances here, and the Bulldogs are eager to make it a home victory sweep at the expense of the Pittsburghers.

Although distanced, the Jackets are not altogether without victory incentive. They are determined to ease the pain of previous setbacks by finishing the series with a creditable showing, and if they succeed in their aim, it must be at the Bulldogs' expense.

SCHOOLEYMEN PRIMED

When the visitors arrived here today they appeared to be in fine fettle for a hard fight. The Bulldogs, too, are at the top of their form, and a capacity crowd is certain to witness the fray, the outcome of which is regarded as being very much in doubt.

Cleveland is to be the guest of Buffalo tonight, while the Jackets are battling here, and by tomorrow a favorite perhaps will have emerged from the title scramble. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh.		Windsor.

CANADIENS WIN TITLE

MONTREAL, April 2.—(AP.)—The Montreal Canadiens won the championship of the National Hockey League and the right to face the Chicago Blackhawks in the final series for the Stanley Cup by defeating the Boston Bruins, 3 to 2, last night in the fifth game of their series. The game went 19 minutes overtime before Wildor Larochelle scored the winning goal. The Canadiens won the series, three games to two.

DORAIS TELLS OF ROCKNE

Norwegian preparing to make the orchestra and the band.

Soon thereafter his efforts were rewarded and he was accepted by both the band and the orchestra.

COACH BY ACCIDENT

At no time did I ever hear old Rock voice a desire to be an athletic instructor. Fate sort of threw him into the work, for the summer after his graduation he met and married Bonnie Skiles, from Tiffin, O. He then had to have something to make his ends meet right away, and the assistant coach job offered by Jesse Harper was the solution.

Rock as a student was the same forceful character that he was later on. He went into campus activities with a vim and was a campus leader. He was a good singer, played in the band, the orchestra, on the track, the football field, a leader in dramatics. In dramatics, his role was that of a Negro mammy in one of the plays which was the hit of the year.

What Rock was not good at he worked at until he won. He had a wonderful persistence.

The thing that was indicative of the Rockne that I knew was well exemplified in his latest gesture of defiance to death. When he was told that he had three years to live, maybe two, did he think of himself or the pleasure he might grasp during this time? Not Rock.

He said, in effect:

"Well, I'll have to hustle then, to get all the money I can gather together for the family. My time is short, so here goes."

Rock is not dead to me, any more than any great man really dies. The imprint of his charming, wonderful personality that he planted in the hearts of his boys will carry his gospel of clean living and fair play on and on after we are all gone.

HUNKANDERSON MAY CARRY ON FOR KNUTE

By JESS CARVER

Knute Rockne—the man who made the entire country a college alumni.

Jim Marks, head master at Kiski, and one of the country's outstanding football heads, a keen, calculating individual, well versed in the lore and intricacies of the gridiron, coined the above definition of the departed warrior. It was aptly put and entirely correct.

Adam Walsh

The Kiski sage was one of those who expressed his heartfelt sympathy over the death of the great Rock. Marks knew Knute K. well, very well indeed. He was a warm admirer of the man, and while not always entirely in accord with his ideas (no great minds ever click in the altogether), Jim Marks recognized Rockne's genius.

ROCK WAS LEADER

"Rockne developed a type of football that appealed to everyone," Marks continued. "He made the country as a whole football conscious. He made an alumnus of everyone."

Pittsburgh has not yet recovered from the shock of Rockne's passing. Yesterday, the entire town was sympathizing, talking and speculating as to his probable successor. The shock was so great that even now it seems to be a dream, a myth, the product of a terrible nightmare.

The chances are that Heartley (Hunk) Anderson, Rockne's assistant coach, will carry on as head coach, for the coming season at least. Charley Bachman, now head coach at the University of Florida, may get the job eventually, but the idea seems to be that Anderson will be entrusted with the task of directing the Irish next fall.

If Bachman is not selected as a successor, Adam Walsh, famous all-America center of the Four Horsemen team, may be brought back from Yale for the position. There was some talk last year of Walsh being installed in Rockne's place, should Rock decide to retire. Walsh is a smart head, and at Yale has gained valuable experience.

WALSH IN LINE

Jimmy Phelan, now at Washington; Noble Kizer, the toast of Purdue; Harry Stuhldreher, of Villa Nova, quarterback of the Four Horsemen; Gus Dorias, of Detroit University, Rockne's teammate and roommate during undergraduate days; Charley Crowley, now at Michigan State, and Tom Lieb, head coach at Loyola University, of Los Angeles, are dark horses; some more dark than others.

Regarding the return of Walsh to South Bend, a man close to affairs at Notre Dame told me last fall in Chicago that plans were under way at that time to have Walsh replace Rockne whenever Rock wanted to step out.

Rockne once told me that Walsh was in a fine spot at Yale, that he'd learn a lot about coaching there and that he would be in a fine position as assistant coach of the great Eastern institution to step upward to the head job at South Bend if the occasion ever demanded.

"But I'm not figuring on getting out very soon," Rock added, "and it looks like I'll be barking at the boys here for a few more years."

How South Bend would like to hear that voice today!

HOPPE VICTOR OVER COCHRAN

Willie Hoppe took over Welker Cochran, 18.1 and 18.2 balkline billiard champion, in their four exhibition contests at the Carnegie Library Club, in Homestead, yesterday. After splitting the two afternoon competitions, Hoppe copping the balkline test, 200 to 91, with a high run of 183, and Cochran returning triumphant in the three-cushion act, 25 to 17, with a high run of seven, Willie beat Welker twice in the evening jousts, grabbing the balkline tilt, 200 to 83, and the three-cushion match, 25 to 15, with a run of five. Hoppe and Cochran play at Uniontown today, Washington, Pa., tomorrow and Columbus, O., Saturday.

Yesterday's balkline scores:

AFTERNOON
Hoppe	183	13	4	—200
Cochran	34	53	4	— 91
EVENING
Hoppe	66	88	1	1 44—200

TECH QUINT FACES 24 GAMES NEXT SEASON

North Side A. C. to Play in Westmoreland County League This Year

TARTANS CARD DUKES, YALE, PRINCETON

The longest and hardest basketball schedule a Carnegie Tech team has ever been required to play was announced this morning by Graduate Manager Clarence Overend for the Skibos' 1931-32 court campaign. With bookings pending for the first two games, the card will consist of 24 contests, with the schedule to open on December 18 and close on March 11.

Rarely has a Plaid basketball team started formal activities before the first of the year, but in the next season three games will have been played by that time, and two more will be out of the way before Christmas holidays have been completed.

13 GAMES ABROAD

Ralph Hogan's passers will be called upon to play 13 of their games on the road.

Simultaneously with the varsity schedule, Overend announced a 17-game card for the Plebes, also the longest schedule a Tartan yearling aggregation has ever played.

High spots of the 1931-32 schedule are games with Yale and Princeton, University of Chicago, of the Western Conference, the inauguration of basketball relations with Duquesne University, the resumption of athletic relations with Allegheny College, and the booking of two games with several teams where one has been the rule in the past.

Duquesne and Tech will meet for the first time in basketball on Saturday, January 30, in the Carnegie gymnasium. The return game will be played on the Duke floor on March 4.

Three trips of more than one day will be made, the first to be on December 18 and 19, the second to include the University of Buffalo and the University of Chicago, and the third to send Carnegie against Princeton, Temple and Georgetown within four days.

The varsity schedule follows:

SIX OF EIGHT CLUBS ENTER NEW LOOP

By TOM BIRKS

Another member of the Honus Wagner family was completed at a special meeting of the Westmoreland County loop, held in Latrobe, last night, when six clubs laid the foundation of what should be one of the finest leagues Wagner has organized.

Attending the session were the North Side A. C., Saxman A. C., Bradenville, Snydertown, Hostetter and Whitney A. C.; Managers J. Sartoris, J. Kelly, M. Kranok, J. Vados, S. Pevarnick and Bill McGuire were their representatives.

They were keenly enthusiastic regarding possibilities for the coming season, and there is reason to feel Honus will give Westmoreland County fans a real league.

The managers kept open two vacancies, and these will be given to the first two clubs which post forfeits at the next meeting, April 9, in the Miller Hotel, Latrobe.

The season will be split into halves. When the champion is named, Wagner will pick an all-star nine to meet the champions, and he has announced he would play in the game.

At the next meeting the rules will be passed upon, forfeits of the remaining clubs posted, and the schedule completed, with a banner getaway May 4.

This evening, the Duquesne Mushball League will hold a meeting at the Wagner store. Eight clubs have signified their intention of being present.

A meeting, with Honus in charge, will be held at New Brighton tomorrow evening, under the auspices of the American Legion, Ellwood, Koppel, Aliquippa, New Brighton, Beaver, Midland, Rochester, Baden and Monaca. It will be called at 7:30 in the American Legion headquarters.

DATTO BARRED, HIS MANAGER 'TELLS ALL'

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

"Well, I suppose if we are suspended there's nothing we can do about it now, but I would like to have the fans of Pittsburgh get our side of the story at least."

Mose Donley, of Cleveland, was the speaker. He is the manager of Johnny Datto, Filipino featherweight, who was set down indefinitely, along with Jackie Rodgers, local Negro rival, by the State Athletic Commission yesterday for their poor fight in their third meeting before a capacity crowd in the Motor Square Garden ring last Monday night.

DENIES "FIX" CHARGE

"Anyone who says the 'fix' was in on the fight doesn't know what he is talking about," Donley said. "Datto doesn't go in for that sort of stuff, and he is all upset about this mess. As you know, he substituted on short notice for Steve Smith against Rodgers, after Rodgers had canceled on him more than a week before. He had only a few days' boxing and came in at 125½ pounds, which is two or three pounds heavier than he ever is when right. He doesn't know yet what was wrong with him in the bout. He went all right for the first three rounds and then couldn't loosen up. His recollection of the bout is hazy. It's like a bad dream.

"I have been in pretty much the same sort of daze myself as a result of what happened. You can figure it out for yourself from the fact that I went back into Ohio without taking Datto's purse with me and had to return to get it from the hotel safe here.

WOULD REDEEM SELF

"All I can say is that both Datto and I sincerely regret his poor showing and would like nothing better than to come back and square matters with the fans. Johnny will fight Rodgers again or take on Lew Massey or Eddie Shea or anybody to prove his sincerity of purpose, and we are sorry the suspension has been imposed to serve as a stumbling block to any such arrangement."

Kerr Turns Down Western Reserve Grid Offer

CLEVELAND, April 2.—(AP.)—Andy Kerr, football coach at Colgate University, said in a long distance telephone conversation that he could not accept an offer to become coach at Western Reserve University here.

Kerr, who had been officially tendered the position, said he still had one year of a contract with Colgate, which he could not break. Gordon Locke, director of athletics, said Kerr's decision was "a big blow to Reserve."

Between Rounds

Joey Spiegel, of Uniontown, has been signed to box Paul Oser, of Moundsville, W. Va., in the six-round second preliminary to the Maxie Rosenbloom-Billy Jones battle at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. Freddie Haverlack, stablemate of Rosenbloom, will meet Joey Boler, of Erie, another newcomer here, in the six-round opener.

The next amateur boxing show at the Pittsburgh Lyceum is listed for April 16.

Ralph Davis, middleweight, and Young Angelo, featherweight, of Wolfdale, want to show here. Their manager, Frank Stanley, may be reached by calling Wolfdale 2014-J.

Sparky Ewalt and Ben Pulley will box the windup of the amateur boxing card under the auspices of American Legion Post No. 41, in the Moose Temple next Tuesday night. Seven bouts in all are listed.

Billy Brent, local Negro middleweight, boxes Jimmy Taylor, of Cleveland, in the main bout of a show at Franklin, Pa., next Monday night. Jack Thompson and Frankie Chatterton are in another eight-rounder.

Jack McVey, New York Negro middleweight, boxes Al Venore in Philadelphia tonight. Frank Morris defends his New York National Guard heavyweight championship in a 12-round bout in New York, while Jackie Adare and Mule Brown a headline another armory show there.

Knute Rockne's Life Story—By Warren Brown

It is not offered now, as it never was offered in his lifetime by Rockne, as an alibi.

As a matter of fact, a team that was able to defeat Northwestern by 14 to 0, doesn't especially need an alibi.

Anderson, back at South Bend, holding forth while the Old Man was peering out through the low visibility at Evanston that day, trying, and failing as did most of us, to see very much of what the Northwestern - Wisconsin game was all about, was in a quandary.

The regulars of Notre Dame had taken the lead over Drake, and added to it.

The game looked safe. But was it?

Anderson must have recalled that Carnegie Tech episode of 1926. He wasn't going to take any chances. He kept the regulars in, and Drake, as I have mentioned, was a hard driving, slashing team.

From that contest, Marty Brill, the best blocking halfback the American gridiron saw last fall, emerged with injuries. So did Tom Kassis and Bert Metzger, the regular guards. Others bore painful reminders, right into the Northwestern game, that there had been another football game the Saturday previous.

And Northwestern wasn't exactly the sort of an opponent that could be handled with care by an assembly of injured athletes.

Notre Dame couldn't get started in the first half. Northwestern twice threatened to score, and only heroic measures prevented it. What Rockne had to say at half time, I do not know.

That he said something, is certain. That he put physchological pressure on that ailing team, such as Rockne could do better than any other coach who ever drilled a football team, was obvious, when the second half began.

MIRACLE MAN

Northwestern was outplayed in that half. Northwestern was twice scored upon, and the Notre Dame goal line was never again threatened.

After that exhibition the Rockne followers were ready to believe that he could do anything with a football team.

And recalling now, some events of two weeks later, when Southern California was played, and humbled, I am not sure but that they were right.

This Northwestern game was Rockne's greatest test of the year. It might be rated as the greatest test of his career. And yet it was the only game regarding which he never varied, in his frequent conversations with me, from the viewpoint that he would win it.

I have had him sit in a room for as many as six hours, nervously discussing all the possible calamities that could befall in a game that weekend. I have had him tell me that he wished he had my confidence, when his team was traveling westward for the Southern California game. I have had him point out strengths and possibilities of team after team, in all the years I have known him. But never once, in the many times we talked about that Northwestern game, would he go into any such details, or express any opinion, save such as could be summed up in the simple statement:

"We'll win that game."

As I look back now, it occurs to me that Rockne was using his psychology then, but with himself as its object.

If it be any great cheer to Northwestern, I am prepared to suggest now that the game which Rockne always insisted he would win, in 1930, was the one game concerning which he never was quite sure. Never, that is, until Marchmont Schwartz raced those 18 yards to the touchdown so long awaited, to the touchdown that Rockne may have feared—to himself, of course—might never materialize.

As A. A. Stagg, for whom Rockne had the greatest regard, said, when news reached him of Rockne's tragic end:

"He evidently welded his teams together mechanically and spiritually."

That same deduction could be made of Rockne, himself.

KNUTE ROCKNE'S LIFE STORY

The tragic death of the greatest figure in American football has shocked the entire nation. Knute Rockne was not only admired by the sports world, but was loved as few men have ever been. His contribution to clean and fine sportsmanship will not soon be forgotten.

The Post-Gazette is now running "The Life Story of Knute Rockne" by Robert Harron. Every Rockne admirer will want to read this intensely interesting series on Notre Dame's famous leader.

field barrier with Rolly Hemsley on the sack.

The Pirates put the game away in the fourth when they scored seven tallies. Bud Teachout, youthful lefthander, was shelled off the hill during the bombardment. Ed Baecht and Warneke finished.

Spencer was just far enough off in his control to be in trouble. After McClanahan batted for the Binghamton boy, Larry French went to the hill and Larry remained to the finish.

Woodie Jensen relieved Paul Waner and once more played a stellar engagement. The Wichita boy seems to be a star; he hits, fields and runs like a polished veteran.

Cleveland May Get Heavy Bout

CLEVELAND, April 2.—(AP.)—Cleveland appears to have the inside track in the bidding between Chicago, Detroit and this city for the heavyweight championship battle to be held probably July 3, between Champion Max Schmeling and W. L. (Young) Stribling.

William E. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden Corporation, and Joe Jacobs, manager of the German titleholder, have taken under advisement the matter of selecting between Cleveland's Downtown Stadium, Chicago's huge Soldier Field, and Detroit's arena, after prolonged conferences with Cleveland officials.

Sleepy Glenn Stars In Tri-State Play

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 2.—The Penn State Commercial College quintet, of Washington, loomed impressively in the senior division of the fifth annual Tri-State basketball tournament which opened here yesterday. Little Sleepy Glenn, scoring 12 field goals for the Penn State team in its game with Moore's I. G. A. passers from West Alexander, is high scorer of the first round playoffs.

Yesterday's scores: Palace of Sweets 16, Weis Grocers 8; Hugus Five 19, Washington Y Midgets 12; McKeesport 20, Steubenville 16; Alexander Billiards 31, Bruno Barbers 27; Penn State 60, Moore's I. G. A. 16.

Ban Johnson Laid To Rest at Spencer

SPENCER, Ind., April 2.—(AP.)—The body of Byron Bancroft Johnson, one of the founders and first president of the American League, was laid to rest yesterday in the crypt of a mausoleum he had erected two years ago.

His funeral services, held at the Spencer Christian Church, were attended by many of his former associates. The Rev. Wiley S. Hastings, pastor of the Spencer Christian Church, officiated at the services.

Knickers Invade Schneider Floor

The Knickers and Schneiders clash in the second battle of their playoff series for the second half championship of the West Penn League on the North Side Moose floor tonight.

The Schneiders won the first battle after three extra periods and another victory tonight will clinch the West Penn title. If the North Siders win a post-season series will not be necessary, as they also won the first half crown.

Forbes

Stockholders Becoming Boss of Managers.

—By B. C. FORBES—

AMERICAN STOCKHOLDERS are beginning to make executives and boards of directors sit up and take notice.

ABROAD, ANNUAL meetings of important companies are events. Stockholders attend, questions are freely asked and usually the statements presented are advertised at length in the newspapers.

Mr. Forbes

In this country it has heretofore been most unusual for a single outside stockholder to appear at an annual meeting. That stockholders are not expected to show up is revealed by the fact that many large corporations hold their annual meetings in the most extraordinarily out-of-the-way places, utterly inaccessible to owners of shares.

SIGNS MULTIPLY that executives and directorates are not to have everything their own way, that stockholders are arousing themselves, and that hereafter managements will be called upon more often to explain their acts.

For example, half a score of companies have been lately taken to task either for paying bonuses or for proposing to adopt bonus plans. Such objections have been effective in more than one instance.

Only the other day a plan announced by one company to purchase certain important property was voted down.

This week there were even some votes cast against the proposal of the American Telephone and Telegraph directors to authorize them to increase the issuable capital stock from $2,000,000,000 to $2,500,000,000—this notwithstanding the universal recognition that the telephone company is among the best-managed in the world.

OTHER STRAWS showing how the wind blows:

W. A. Webster, Muskogee, Okla., writes:

"It occurs to me that the average stockholder is totally unable to comprehend or understand a report which deals solely in statistics; that a report which attempts to describe briefly the properties of the corporation would enable them to visualize more nearly the valuable properties of which they are the owners, would be of greater value; that such a report should be made by a stockholders' committee.

"I am inclined to the opinion that a stockholders' committee to investigate the affairs of a corporation would be of great benefit to any corporation."

Dr. H. H. Watson, Chicago, writes, in part:

"Most American citizens now believe that vast, mammoth, capitalistic organizations can produce and distribute things much cheaper than the individual. This takes them to the position that instead of going in business for themselves they believe it best to share interests of these mammoth organizations; yet they do not expect these vast corporations to be overcapitalized and to be controlled by promoters rather than natural executives. You see it is a mild form of Socialism to distribute share interests among the people rather than being concentrated among the select few.

"However, there is a danger here to stockholders in not being able to displace their leaders who prove to be incompetent. A few of these leaders of industry still hold it their right to direct and promote corporations for their own profit, never considering the stockholders or the public.

"How are the stockholders going about to displace incompetent management?"

MANAGERS OF industrial and other nonregulated companies are allowed altogether too much license in compiling their annual reports. Many reports are actually worse than useless: they conceal rather than reveal. Some corporation reports, notably those of General Electric, General Motors, U. S. Steel, American Telephone, are admirably comprehensive; but too many are condemnably perfunctory.

The New York Stock Exchange, none too soon, is making an attempt to bring about some semblance of uniformity in annual reports of companies whose stocks are traded in there. The governors of that institution should not hesitate to lay down the law to offending managements.

PRESIDENT GIFFORD, of American Telephone, was recently quoted in this column:

"American business is getting to be so widely owned as to make management more and more of a trusteeship."

F. G. Coburn, of the Aviation Corporation, commenting on the increase in his company's stockholders, said:

"This just gives me so many more bosses to work for."

STOCKHOLDERS, long somnolent, will by and by become the real bosses. Executives and directorates should not blind themselves to the evolution now under way.

South Penn Reflects Drop in Prices

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

RADICALLY CHANGED CONDITIONS in the Pennsylvania oil industry were reflected to a marked extent in the annual report of the South Penn Oil Company. In view of the sharp decline in prices, however, the results for 1930 indicate that operations were conducted on a highly efficient basis.

Net profit for the year was $1,378,072 after depreciation, depletion and taxes. This was equivalent to $1.15 a share on 1,200,000 shares of stock. In 1929 net profit was $5,139,296 or $4.28 while in 1928, $3,911,165 or $4.89 a share was earned on the capitalization outstanding at that time.

The decline in earnings does not seem to be exceptionally large in comparison with the drastic declines in the prices of Pennsylvania grades of crude oil during the past two years. Quotations have slumped from more than $4 a barrel to a present price of $1.85 a barrel for the top grade.

Oil Overproduced

THE DROP IN THE PRICE of Pennsylvania crude oil is partially due to the general condition of the petroleum industry but the major cause can be laid at the door of overproduction of this particular type of oil.

Superior quality is claimed for lubricants made from Pennsylvania crude oil. During the past five years extensive advertising efforts by refining companies have been steadily expanding the market for their products. Demand was developed to such an extent that the consumption of Pennsylvania crude was materially increased. In 1928 the price advanced sharply in recognition of this.

Intensive Drilling Started

UNDER THE STIMULUS of high prices, drilling operations were greatly intensified. The discovery of the flooding process for the recovery of additional oil from parts of the Bradford field, formerly thought to be exhausted, also increased production.

As a result of these influences, production of Pennsylvania crude increased faster than the demand for the product during 1930 and the latter part of 1929. This situation caused the sharp reductions in prices which have eliminated profits for most producers.

Interest in Pennzoil

STABILIZING FACTORS in South Penn's earnings during the past year have been its holdings in other companies. A controlling interest is owned in the Pennzoil Company. This organization is a refining and marketing company which gives South Penn an outlet for its products. The prices of lubricants have been quite stable so that this company has been able to maintain earnings at a satisfactory rate.

South Penn also has a 55 per cent interest in the Penn-Mex Fuel Corporation. This is an oil producing company with operations in Mexico. The company has been able to expand its production through drilling operations in the Alamo field during the past three years and has contributed substantially to South Penn's revenues.

Dividends Cut

THE DECLINE IN ITS EARNINGS made it necessary for South Penn to reduce its dividends. The annual rate was cut from a $2 to a $1 basis early this year. Last September directors discontinued the payment of extra dividends of 12½ cents which formerly were paid quarterly.

The company has no preferred stock or funded debt. While South Penn is currently suffering from a depression due to overproduction, satisfactory results are being shown in the Pennsylvania fields from proration efforts. An unique feature about the Pennsylvania fields is the long life of wells. While production of individual wells are rarely large, oil has been taken from some for as long as 30 years. This indicates that the increased production developed by South Penn will become valuable when better conditions are secured in the industry since production can be maintained at a high level without extensive drilling operations.

After providing for the payment of 8% dividends to the stockholders and for sinking and other reserve funds, $11,431,273 was credited to Profit and Loss Account.

NEW FACILITIES INSTALLED

The Company expended $71,643,416 in 1930 for improvements on its own road and equipment in addition to the expenditure of large sums by its leased and affiliated lines. The net increase in the Investment in Road and Equipment for the entire Pennsylvania Railroad System was $91,798,977.

The new suburban passenger terminal in the business centre of Philadelphia under the Company's new Broad Street Station Building, and the new 30th Street Station, constituting the first major step in the passenger terminal improvements in Philadelphia, were opened; Broad Street Station Building was opened; a substantial part of the new rail-water terminal at Jersey City was placed in service; electric service was inaugurated between Philadelphia and Norristown and Philadelphia and Trenton, providing electric service on all the Pennsylvania Railroad's suburban lines in the Philadelphia district.

Engine cab signals, providing the most modern safety signal development, were installed between Manhattan Transfer, N. J., and Washington, D. C., and between Altoona and Pittsburgh, making a total of over 2,800 miles of track equipped for cab signal operation. Automatic block signals were installed on 170 additional miles of road, providing this form of protection between practically all large centres of population on the System.

NEW EQUIPMENT

Important items of new equipment placed in service were: 105 passenger and freight locomotives; 57 steel passenger and dining cars; 2,362 steel box cars; 201 steel gondola cars; 16 steel horse cars; 2 Diesel electric tugboats for New York Harbor; 90 steam passenger train cars were equipped with motors for electric service.

LARGE IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

To provide in advance improvements in facilities and service required by changing industrial conditions and by advances in the science of transportation itself, the Pennsylvania Railroad is now engaged on one of its greatest improvement programs involving an expenditure of approximately $175,000,000. Instead of taking four years as originally planned, the management has decided to speed up the program and complete it in about 2½ years, thus taking advantage of low prices of materials, increased efficiency of labor, less interference from traffic, favorable cost of money and earlier resultant economies in operation.

The program involves the use of more than 150,000 tons of steel, purchase of 230 electric locomotives, electrification of 80 passenger cars and a large outlay for labor which should help to relieve unemployment. Projects to be completed are: Electrification of the remaining portions of the lines between New York and Washington; new main station at West Philadelphia; new station and other improvements at Newark, N. J., including new bridges over the Passaic River; six-tracking the line through Elizabeth, N. J.; construction of new line around Trenton, N. J., including a bridge over the Delaware River; improvements at Baltimore, including grade crossing removals and two new double-track tunnels.

FINANCE

The Company met its maturing obligations including $50,000,000 Ten-Year 7% Secured Gold Bonds.

Issuance and sale during the year of $60,000,000 forty-year, 4½ per cent Gold Debenture Bonds left unused at the end of the year approximately $85,000,000 of the Company's authorized indebtedness. In order to provide the capital necessary to continue the Company's progressive development and improvement and to retire outstanding obligations, there will be submitted to the stockholders at the annual meeting the question of authorizing the Board of Directors to increase the authorized indebtedness to the extent of $150,000,000 additional.

The Company has paid a return to its stockholders in every year since 1847. It is owned by 233,414 stockholders, a new high record, who reside in every State of the Union and nearly all foreign countries. A large proportion of the year's increase of 37,205 stockholders represents new employe holders as a result of the employe stock allotments of 1928 and 1930. The 1930 allotment was heavily over-subscribed by more than 72,000 employes in all departments of the service. Employes constitute 22% of the stockholders.

OPERATING EFFICIENCY

Notwithstanding unusual business conditions, operating efficiency, as measured by the ratio of operating expenses to operating revenues, was greater in 1930 than in any of the preceding nine years except 1928 and 1929. Operating ratios for the last ten years, given below, reflect the Company's steady progress in reducing costs through greater efficiency and economy in all parts of the service, increased loading and speed of trains, closer cooperation between officers and employes and the expenditure of many millions of dollars to improve and expand equipment and facilities.

1921	87.6%	1926	77.8%
1922	83.4%	1927	76.0%
1923	81.8%	1928	73.8%
1924	80.2%	1929	72.1%

COORDINATED TRANSPORTATION

Through the more extensive use of containers and portable truck bodies, in cooperation with established trucking companies, by affiliation with transcontinental bus lines and a half interest in Pennsylvania-Greyhound Lines, Inc., the Pennsylvania Railroad established during the year a sound and profitable basis of coordinating rail and highway transportation which benefits the Company itself, the public and the highway agencies interested. Travel over the coordinated rail-air route between New York and Pacific Coast cities showed such a satisfactory increase that it was necessary to place two daily railair 48-hour schedules in effect in each direction. A new 36-hour all-air mail express and passenger service was also inaugurated by Transcontinental & Western Air Transport, Inc., which took over the operations of the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., and Western Air Express, Inc., to operate the line between New York and Los Angeles—San Francisco.

The financial results achieved last year, notwithstanding marked reductions in business and revenues, reflect not only the Company's large capital expenditures for improvements in service and efficiencies and economies in operation, but also the increasingly cordial and effective cooperation which exists between the management and employes.

STOCK MARKET DECLINE GAINS MOMENTUM

Rally in Morning Soon Lost in Selling Wave; Dividend News Adverse

NEW YORK, April 2—(AP.)—The decline in share prices gained momentum in today's stock market, rounding out a fortnight of almost steady backsliding.

Some observers had expected the closing out of short contracts in advance of the Good Friday market holiday tomorrow to give the list a temporary upturn. A rally did get under way in the morning, but was soon lost in a wave of selling. Since two weeks ago next Saturday, the market, as measured by the price index of 90 shares, has had only two slight upturns, and the latest one was almost negligible.

The day brought forth more adverse dividend news, although the reduction of United States Industrial Alcohol's annual rate from $6 to $2 was less drastic than some observers had expected. With alcohol selling at 19 cents a gallon, it is believed to be below production costs. The company is in a good financial position to weather an unprofitable period. Archer - Daniels - Midland omitted the 50-cent quarterly payment due at this time.

The bond market continued to give a somewhat better account of itself, but with a large offering of Treasury certificates, or possibly government bonds, expected next week, it was held in check. Call money renewed at 1½ per cent, but was not plentiful at that level.

The definite reversal of the upward trend in steel mill activity, as reported yesterday, had greatly impaired speculative sentiment. It is still too early, however, to judge the significance of this development. Next week's steel mill estimates are awaited with keen interest. Republic Steel is starting up two openhearth furnaces at its Bourne-Fuller plant.

The Automobile Chamber of Commerce's March production estimate indicates that the industry in the United States and Canada produced about 290,000 units last month, a substantial gain over February. Advance estimates for April, however, are less optimistic than recently. While 400,000 units was mentioned a short time ago, trade circles now expect the output may be under 350,000 units.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, April 2.—Reports of increased vessel chartering in Southern Russian ports saw grain prices average lower early today, with oats outdoing the season's low price record. Buying, however, for previous sellers who wished to even up accounts in preparation for a holiday tomorrow served to steady the market somewhat. Opening ⅜ cent off to ¼ up, wheat afterward kept near to the initial range. Corn started at ½ cent decline to ¼ advance and subsequently sagged further.

NEW YORK, April 2—Cotton opened steady today, 1 to 3 points lower. At the end of the first half hour May was selling around 10.38c and October 11.10c, about 2 to 3 points net lower, with the market holding fairly steady.

Covering became slightly more active later in the morning. Offerings were light. May contracts sold up to 10.38c and October to 11.13c, or a point above yesterday's close. There was no aggressive demand, however, and the bulge was not fully maintained. The midday market was very quiet at net declines of 1 to 2 points.

Offerings, however, were not aggressive and aside from one small lot of Philippines which was said to be available at 3.33c, holders were generally asking 3.35c.

Refined was unchanged with good withdrawals, but no new business and prices quoted at 4.50c for fine granulated.

Oil Co-operative Operating at Kettleman

LOS ANGELES, April 2.—(AP.)—Two wells were producing on the north dome of Kettleman Hills today under the management of a pioneering oil co-operative.

The organization, formed by companies and individuals to insure orderly handling of crude in the famous field with the limit set at 50,000 barrels daily, began operation yesterday. Work was going forward on seven other wells.

Reduction of overhead expenses and sharing of the cost of exploration and new drilling by all members were announced aims.

William Reinhardt, head of the organization, said:

"Similar associations are in the process of formation in these areas. It is through such an agreement alone that fields can be developed in an orderly manner."

Lorry Considers Himself Obligated to Actress

CHAPTER XLII.

"No," repeated Lorrimer.

His mother had gone perfectly white. Now with a great rush, as of relief, her color came flooding back again.

Lorrimer went on, as Delight did not speak.

"As soon as I saw her again, I knew—I remembered—everything."

"But," Margaret interrupted, "you thought that Mary Lou was Delight—and you didn't remember then—you clung to your belief—or was it really belief? that you were married to her."

"Is that her name?" asked Lorrimer, oddly. He had been forbidding himself to think of—the other girl. Even when Peter had come downstairs to report that she was not in her room, not, it seemed, in the house, he had kept his mind away from her. He had to get this present, vital situation clear, settled.

His mother nodded, abstractedly. And Lorrimer went on, thinking it all out, a furrow of painful concentration between his brows:

Delight Quiet

"No, I didn't remember when I saw her. She—was just my memory come incarnate, my memory of a girl I had loved, and who was lost to me. But when the real girl came, I knew at once. Delight," he looked at the woman sitting, exhausted physically, in the big chair, a woman who was quite patient, waiting, it seemed, for her cue to enter this new and complicated drama, a woman who appeared to hold herself in leash, "Delight, you know, you remember? We planned to be married—by special license. I gave you that ring. The earliest day on which we could be married was the day my leave was up. We were to be married. I was to return immediately to the front. Then my leave was shortened, by 36 hours. I was recalled. And went—without marrying you. Do you remember?"

"Of course," said Delight, speaking for the first time in many long minutes. She had kept quiet, waiting to see what he would recall and how much. She already knew, of course, the story of his strange obsession, the obsession that he had been married. Mary Lou had poured it all out to her on her visit, so youthfully, so abundantly that Delight had had plenty of time to hide her astonishment, to wait. She had thought, shrewdly, that her own positive knowledge and Lorrimer's lack of it might possibly be a new and important card in the hand she held. But when Lorrimer had come back and recognized her there by the boxwood maze, she had been about to tell Mary Lou the truth. His return had silenced her. And then, with Mary Lou gone, with the situation quite changed, she had held her peace. For if he did not remember, there was temptation in his lack of memory! it was something a clever woman might take advantage of, after all. But he had remembered. She discarded that card, therefore, as a good player should. It was useless to her now.

"But I don't understand," Mrs. Lorrimer said, helplessly.

Dr. Mathews came in. Peter announced him, and went out, shutting the door silently, well aware that some drama was being played out, worried, in his loyal heart, about Mary Lou, wondering where she had gone and why. He'd already seen the cook and been regaled with her backstairs, dramatic recital of Mary Lou's entrance through the kitchen and her exit "without a word spoken, and that ain't like her, Mr. Peter!"

Mathews, entering, looked from Margaret to Lorrimer. Margaret indicated the other woman.

"Dr. Mathews—Miss Harford. This is—Delight Harford, Dan," she said, unnecessarily, for he had recognized her at once.

Looks for Mary Lou

The situation, as far as the ankle was concerned, was explained to the doctor. He gave certain orders, and Delight was helped upstairs to a guest room, where the orders were carried out. Margaret went with her, and Lorrimer, waiting below stairs, went out and talked to Peter—and later invaded the kitchen to see Mrs. Jarmen.

They could only tell him that Mary Lou had gone, that Mrs. Jarmen had seen her "fly" through the kitchen "as if the divil himself was after her, sir!" a suitcase in her hand, a hat "anyhow" on her head and a coat over her arm.

He returned to the library. He would find out where she had gone. Someone would know. His mother perhaps. He realized with a tremendous shock that he knew nothing about this girl, her background, where she came from. Nothing but her name. Yet for months he had thought he knew her very well.

His mother came downstairs. She said, briefly:

"Will you come up to Delight's room? I've asked her to stay, of course. She has telephoned to town and resigned from the company, or whatever it is they do. Dan says the ankle isn't broken but has been badly sprained. She'll be laid up for a little while. She wants to see you, or rather Dan does."

They went upstairs in silence, so much unspoken and unexplained between them. Mathews looked up cheerfully. He was sitting by Delight's bed in the pretty cheerful room, sunk deep in a low chair.

"I want to get this straight," he said. "I've heard the story—now. It worries your mother, Lorrimer, this fixed idea you've had. But I have explained to her that it—or something very like it—isn't unknown in medical annals."

"I wish you'd explain it to me," Lorrimer said, dully; "I can't understand, myself. I was so sure—so sure, all those years! And then today—it came back and I knew, I remembered. I think I must have been crazy!"

Doctor Explains

"No. You returned to the front terribly disappointed because your plans had gone astray. Youth can't bear being baulked, being impatient and hating the verb 'to wait.' Immediately on your return you had a bad accident, you were ill, you were unconscious for a long time, you came to yourself, a prisoner. Much that had happened was wiped out. That is to say your most ardent wish, the wish which had not been fulfilled, was fulfilled in the darkness of your subconscious mind. Your last conscious thought perhaps had been of Miss Harford here and the marriage upon which your heart was set. Therefore in your state of mental and physical shock, the interruption to your plans faded from your conscious memory, the wish fulfillment of the subconscious took its place. Having ardently desired this culmination of your hopes you came to believe the marriage fait accompli. Mary Lou—" Doctor Mathews hesitated but went on steadily. "Mary Lou, in assuming the role of Miss Harford brought nothing to your memory. You simply thought her the girl you had known, come back to you. She stirred no chord in you save to fix your belief that she was Miss Harford because of her accidental resemblance to her. But when you encountered the authentic girl, memory returned. I can't explain it further. Probably no one could. But we doctors have seen many cases of this sort. It was not, however, an explanation which occurred to me before this; although I was frankly puzzled by your insistence upon this apparently unrecorded marriage, as was your mother. And now, I think we'll leave Miss Harford to rest. She can have luncheon brought up here, can she not? It is long past the hour and I've had mine but I'll invite myself to a cup of coffee if you can persuade Mrs. Jarmen to make me one, while you people lunch."

Willing to Wed Delight

Mathews rose and looked down at his patient. She smiled up at him and then spoke to Lorrimer, almost timidly:

"I've brought you all into a dreadful muddle by coming back, haven't I? I didn't mean to—come back. Not really, Lorry, perhaps you'll come and talk to me after? I want to tell you why you couldn't find me; what happened."

"Of course," he said, and added, "Delight."

Luncheon, as far as Margaret and Lorrimer were concerned, was a farce.

"What now?" he asked Lorrimer, squarely, putting it up to him.

"There's only one thing to do," he answered. "If Delight will have me, I'm at her service of course."

"Oh, Travers, no!" his mother said, on a little sob.

He turned to her, and put his hand over hers.

"I can't help it, mother," he told her. "I suppose it's what Doc Dan here would call my old obsession." He smiled, wryly. "I loved her; I asked her to marry me; I went through 10 years of my life with the fixed idea that she had. I—if she wants me, I'm willing to fulfill what I consider an obligation." He paused and said, slowly, "I don't know her any more, of course. It's as if she were a stranger. Funny, too, for—for when that other Delight was here, I had no such feeling about her. Yet she was a stranger! But this girl upstairs; she's been through a bad time, I can see that. I'd like to make it up to her, if I can."

Margaret was crying, very quietly. Mathews looked at her, shook his head warningly. She was saying—"My fault—all my fault. Travers, do you blame me, very much?"

He replied, slowly:

"No. I understand. You were forced into it by circumstances, by my old madness, by—Oh, I don't blame you. But I can't understand—her. Playing that part."

DAILY TRUE STORY -:- Rose -:-

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

It was quiet in Lonny's place.

Lonny didn't care for noisy patrons. Not that he was afraid the noise would make trouble and result in a raid—he paid his money regularly to the collector for the "Man Higher Up." He was thoroughly protected.

Lonny preferred to run a quiet place because he got a better class of patrons—patrons who could afford top prices for their liquor and who, for the most part, bought frequently, day in and day out, but never to excess.

A few were always found standing at the long bar, talking quietly, but most of us were at the little tables set in semi-booths, while the white-coated boys brought whatever we ordered, along with the blue-plate grills that were a feature of the place.

Judge Blank introduced me to the place and to Lonny. You know, as well as I, that the judge's name wasn't "Blank." Try and make me divulge his real name!

To me he was never exactly Judge Blank, but Joe, because we had been in college together. After that I took to rambling around the more or less well-known world and writing about it. This didn't put me in the bloated bondholder class, but it gave me plenty for necessities and such luxuries as patronizing Lonny's place whenever I felt so inclined.

Joe took to law school, the bar—this time I refer to the legal bar — and finally to the bench. Joe was a swell friend. His judgeship didn't go to his head. He was regular—and human. He could stand a drink now and then along with his blue-plate grill.

Several times I had noticed a man almost sartorially perfect—he reminded one of the line in the theater programs. "What the well-dressed man will wear." There was another striking thing about him aside from his excellent taste in clothes and his quiet dignity. That was his handsome head of white hair, which belied his juvenile appearance. But for the white hair he wouldn't seem over 30.

"Rather striking chap," I said to Joe one evening as this man walked past us, pausing to nod to Joe. "What about him?"

"Nothing. He has money and lives quietly; he's all right."

The man paused to speak pleasantly with Lonny and started back for one of the tables. As he came opposite to where I was sitting with Joe he nodded and said, "How do you do, Judge."

Then I saw him stare at me with a most peculiar expression for a moment. I was thinking that perhaps he thought he knew me. He stepped up quietly and, without the least excitement, he reached over and removed the rose from my lapel.

Destroys Flower

"Pardon me, sir," he said.

Then he slowly tore that rose to bits, brushed his hands together and went on to his seat.

I didn't like it. I wasn't inclined to "pardon" it, and I half arose when Joe's toe tapped my leg. I looked at him and he shook his head.

Joe lighted a cigar: "I could have told you about him before, only I do not make it a rule to discuss anything that might be unethical. However, since the incident of the rose happened to you, and you are my friend and won't write this—at least so that it will be recognized—I'll break a rule and tell you about it.

John Whittaker, Judge Blank said, beginning his narrative, was a clerk in the brokerage house of Adam Huxley. (I am not giving the real names, with one exception.) He was well educated but with no money except his salary. He was an unusually efficient man in his position, and he was certainly a handsome young man. Not in an effeminate way, mind you, but in one of those Apollo-like collar advertisement types.

Vivacious Girl

Huxley had an only child, a daughter named Rose—

"I begin to see it now," I broke in.

This Rose Huxley, the judge went on, was vivacious, rather daring, forever on the go in a social way and one of the biggest catches of her day because of her father's fortune.

The very first time she dropped in at her father's office and saw Whittaker, she seemed to be crazy about him. He had been there fully a year by that time. Rose did not often get downtown that far.

Whittaker happened to be making some report to Huxley when Rose came in. She eyed him eagerly and demanded an introduction. Huxley complied, naturally. After Whittaker left the old man's office he mildly chided her.

"Whittaker is all right, Rose—good education, good family, but no money. I don't like the idea of having you introduce him into your wealthy set. He will meet young men who discuss their yachts and polo ponies and the like and it will make him discontented. A discontented man, especially one who had access to large sums of other people's money, is not a desirable employe," her father told her.

"Hooey, Dad—that's different. I can't see it," Rose insisted.

On her way out she went to Whittaker's little office.

Father Agrees

Rose was evidently crazy about John Whittaker, as the saying goes. And because her girl friends also raved over him, this gave her more of a thrill. She was determined that none of her friends would take him away from her. As a matter of fact, Whittaker had eyes for no one other than Rose Huxley. Rose confided in her father that she was in love with him and wanted to marry him. She told him that something must be done.

"Jack won't propose now because he is poor—if he were advanced and helped to clean up some money, he'd propose," she said.

Her father agreed that she was right and that Whittaker was right in not proposing. He was rather pleased. Whittaker was far more of a man than most of the chaps in his daughter's set. It was not difficult for him to advance Whittaker, to put him wise to several "corners" where his pitiful nest-egg of fifteen hundred first grew to as many thousand and within six months to 10 times as much.

John Whittaker, possessed of more money than he ever expected, proposed to Rose Huxley, won her father's consent, and the result was a brilliant wedding. Whittaker had been taken into the firm just before this to prevent the newspapers from flashing one of those "Heiress weds father's poor clerk" yarns.

Rose continued to play around in her social set as usual, and she naturally had more freedom, being married. She was forever after thrills and new stunts and had a weakness for rather daring parties, and especially for men who were experts in love-making.

This couldn't keep up forever. Whittaker finally became suspicious. He acted, by means of clever detectives,

Apologizes for Act

"I got you, Joe," I said, "he got wise and because her name was Rose, he has always hated roses."

Joe said, mildly, "Suppose you wait."

I apologized.

"There were many lovers. Whittaker and his detectives walked in on his wife and a notorious chap who had married a fool old woman for her money.

"'This,' he said to the detectives, 'is my wife.' He left with them.

"At home that night his wife was there with old Huxley, who had been told and looked ready to die from grief and shame.

"'John,' said the old man, 'can't this be fixed up?'"

Rose stood there, not frantic over having been found out, but over the scandal which would cause her set to drop her. There were roses on the table. John Whittaker took one. For a moment Rose and her father thought he was going to forgive.

"Slowly he tore the rose to bits, then he scuffed the petals into the rug.

"'If you can restore that rose to its original beauty and purity,' John Whittaker said, 'this can be fixed up.'"

Judge Blank had finished his story.

Two tables away young, white-haired John Whittaker sat, staring somberly into his highball. I felt like going over and making a bow to him.

Salary Raiser Now Law

Governor Affixes Signature to Measure Permitting Pay Increase to City Cabinet.

Gov. Pinchot yesterday signed the act sponsored by Senator James J. Coyne providing an increase from $8,000 to $12,000 as the maximum salary for directors of departments of the Pittsburgh city government. Explaining his action, the governor said it was legislation in the line of home rule, something he always has believed in.

The governor, of course, by signing the bill, is not setting the salary for Pittsburgh officials. That is a matter up to Council. It does not have to make any salary increases unless it sees fit to do so. And, in any event, the law is not applicable to present office-holders, but to their successors.

Of course, they could resign and be reappointed if Council should immediately decide the time is ripe for a raid on the treasury. Yet Council has so much on its hands at present, as a result of what is strongly intimated to have been a concerted raid of that kind, that it seems logical to assume that it will do nothing rash just at this time.

We want our department directors to be paid all they are worth, and perhaps all of them are worth $12,000 a year. But they certainly can't all be worth the same amount. If the director of public works, for instance, is worth only that amount, some should be content to have their value appraised at much less than that.

Just now, too, seems to be a very good time for Council to decide that economy should be the watchword in many matters, including highly paid directors, for several years to come.

Manager Bill Tabled

Measure Victim of Weird Tactics in Committee Evidently Swayed by Politics.

The Moore city manager bill, presented in the House at Harrisburg, January 22, by Representative D. Glenn Moore, of Washington, appears to be the victim of weird legislative tactics. After having passed second reading, it was recommitted to the elections committee for the purpose of having a public hearing on the measure. Such a hearing was held and no opposition to it is reported to have been in evidence.

What happened? The committee "indefinitely postponed action" on the bill. In other words, it was "pickled." Representative James Wettach, of the North Side, is reported to have made the motion to table it, and the committee, which had once reported the bill to the House, where it had passed two readings, abjectly reversed itself.

Had there been public opposition to the measure this action might be explained, but it appears the only opposition to it is political, especially as the plans made for this legislation contemplated amendment so that it would not include third class cities, now covered alone in another bill.

The provisions of the bill are not mandatory, merely offering a way for the people to decide at the polls if they desire a city manager instead of a mayor. Council would select the manager.

Why was the bill smothered in committee instead of being allowed to come again before the House for final action?

Evidently because the Kline political machine of Pittsburgh is afraid the voters of Pittsburgh want to throw the present administration out of office!

Progress on Subway

Transit Commission and Railway Company Getting Together on Terms.

Within the next two weeks officials of the Pittsburgh Railways Company will meet with the City Transit Commission to draw up terms for the operation of the proposed $6,000,000 downtown subway.

It is to be hoped that some tangible results will be obtained from the conference. Traffic problems in the triangle are becoming increasingly acute and the subway, which will take cars off many of the downtown streets, will materially help the situation.

The expenditure of $6,000,000 for the improvement will also be helpful in the relief of unemployment.

The railway officials have stated that they are willing to pay rental for the tunnel equal to the savings in operating costs. Some difficulties are being encountered in estimating the extent of these savings.

The construction of the subway is so important to the city that the project should be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

Scandal More Serious

Disregard of Civil Service Commission Decisions Charged by Evans.

If Henry Oliver Evans is successful in substantiating his charges that Mayor Kline has disregarded the Civil Service Commission in putting political followers in jobs in the Department of Public Works, the case against the city administration will be made increasingly serious.

The Civil Service Commission gives practically the only assurance that competent men will be put in city jobs where technical knowledge is needed.

The disregard of the board's decisions would indicate not only that the Mayor has no desire to provide an efficient administration but also that he has no regard for the laws which he, as a public official, should uphold.

Relief for Women

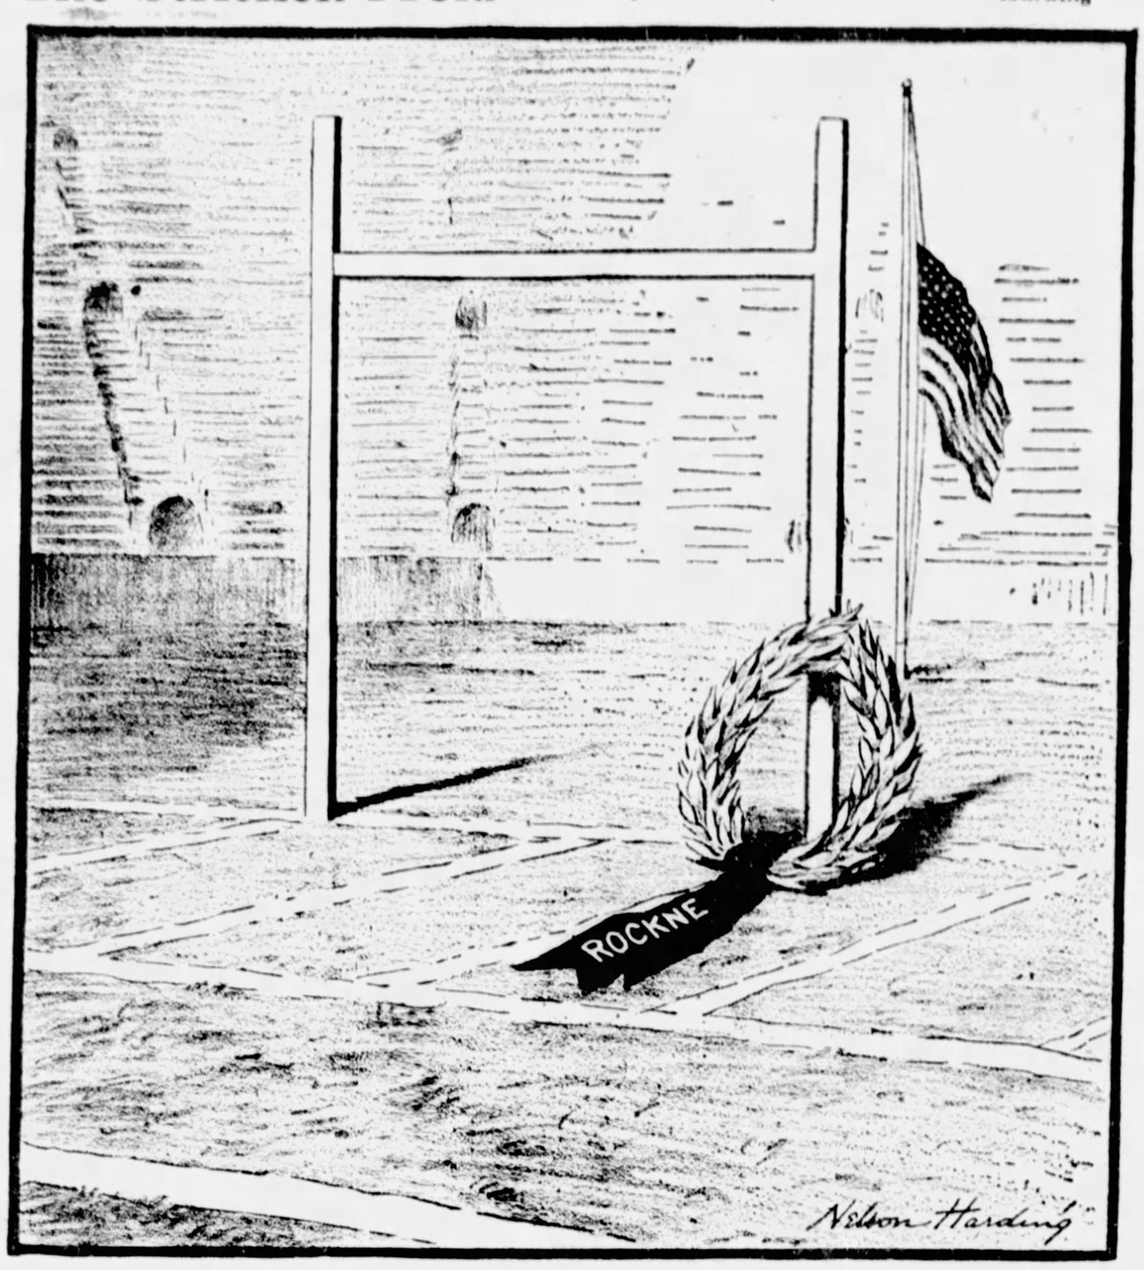
Commissioners Vote Purchase of Machines to Do Floor Scrubbing.

The decision of the County Commissioners to buy floor-scrubbing machines is significant of more than economy. Women, instead of being employed at the laborious task of cleaning floors, will be assigned to lighter duties, so the action of the Commissioners takes on a humanitarian aspect.

Many women, of course, are forced by circumstances to seek work that is menial and hard. It is not to society's credit that they have to do so, but it is greatly to the credit of the women that they turn to it in their need. There is something shocking to the sensibilities to see a woman on her knees wiping up the floor of a public building. It is fine to know they will be relieved of that in the county buildings.

The Stricken Field -:- -:-

By Nelson Harding



Stricken is the field and empty,
Melancholy stand the goal-posts
In the silent amphitheater—
Silent, desolate and lonely.

None can see it without mourning,
None can stand untouched by sadness
And look on the drooping colors
Lowered for its fallen hero.

Omar Khayyam, Mathematician

By Archibald Henderson

Contemporary critics are coming more and more to discover and recognize the relation between science and art. Poetry and Mathematics is the title of a recent work by Scott Buchanan. There is surely nothing new in this. For Omar Khayyam, the "tent maker," author of the famous Algebra as well as of the Rubiayat, is now regarded as one of the world's great poets. A huge literature has grown up about him in recent times, dating from Fitzgerald's first instalment of his English paraphrase, issued in 1859. There is a world cult of Omar Khayyam as a poet. There have been many and able translations of his quatrains, together with a very considerable literature of criticism.

On the other hand, Omar Khayyam was a mathematician of real eminence. Sarton, in his monumental Introduction to the History of Science, calls him "one of the greatest mathematicians of mediaeval times." He was not only poet and mathematician, but also an astronomer, who made historic contributions to the history of the calendar.

His name is a considerable one, in more sense than one: Abu-Z-Fath Umar ibn Ibrahim al-Khayyami Ghiyath al-din. He was born in or near Nishabur in the interval from 1038 to 1048, and died there. His most famous work is his Algebra, a word derived from "al gibr w'al mukhabala," the title of every Saracen work on the subject since the time of Abn Jafar Muhammed ibn Musa al Khwarizmi, about 825 A. D., who was long supposed to have invented the subject. We now know that this work is simply a translation of the Arithmetic of Diophantus of Alexandria, about 275 A. D.

Omah Khayyam's Algebra is notable in several respects. He got along without symbols, using words instead. Thus, instead of the equation $x^3+5x^2=3x+4$, he would say "a cube and five squares are equal to three roots and a number four." He gives both algebraic and geometric solutions of the quadratic equation. He solves equation by means of the intersections of conic sections. Unfortunately he carelessly neglected to employ both branches of the hyperbola in his construction. He did not consider negative roots at all; and the failure to use both branches of the hyperbola sometimes caused him to miss one of the positive roots.

Omar did not believe that cubic equations could be solved by calculation, but thought we must rely upon intersecting conics to furnish solutions. He classified equations, not on the basis of degree, which began as late as the end of the sixteenth century, but according to their complexity. On this basis, Omar recognizes 13 different forms of the cubic equation. Furthermore, he employed the binomial theorem with positive integral exponents. Omar also solved an interesting quartic equation, the solution being identical with the problem of constructing an equilateral trapezoid whose base and sides are of the same given length and whose area is given.

In 1074-5 the Sultan Jalal al-din called Omar to the new observatory of Ray to reform the old Persian calendar, viz., 30 times 12 days plus five days. Omar's calendar was one-third more accurate than the calendar we use today! According to modern interpretation, there were eight intercalary days in 33 years. The average length of Omar's solar year was 365 days, 5 hours, 49 minutes and 5.45 seconds. William Edward Story calls Omar Khayyam the greatest of the Saracen mathematicians.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

When I was a little girl the gypsies camped every year in a lonely lane by Ruane's pasture.

For months the lane would stand empty, save for the rabbits scuttling through the hot, sweet thickets of anise, and the small blue butterflies that spread in a trembling web above the wild mustard. Then, between a dawn and dusk, the gypsies would swoop down like a great flock of ragged, vivid birds.

Back of their camp the pasture rolled up to the sky, peacock green with heavy winter grass—burnished gold through the long, dry months of summer and fall. And, against the green and gold and blue, the gypsy smoke rose in lavender wands.

I liked the gypsies. They were an unclean, lazy bunch of thieves, but handsome and most friendly. I greatly preferred them to virtuous but dreary Respectable Folk. Whenever I could, I ran away and ate with them. Sharp as if it were yesterday, I can remember the smell and taste of gypsy stew . . . the wide, green twilight with the sleepy fields stretching out and out . . . the gypsies lolling around a great sooty pot, babies sprawling, dogs skulking . . . the battered vans looming black and shapeless behind the twinkling fires.

What was there about that stew? It was not like any stew we ever had at home, although I have no doubt that it was stolen from the same source. But there was a tang to it—anise, perhaps . . . or a handful of pungent herbs gathered and dried in their wandering. Or was it the touch of the gypsy life itself . . . that life which, even as a child, I could see was not all romance. Fierce, lashing suns and seeping rain, knife cuts and rags . . . hot brawls or broken wails beside some hurried, wayside grave . . . a sudden flight before the angry Law . . . did these things help to give a tang to stew?

Certainly there was magic in it somewhere. For, eating with them so, something happened that never happened over other food with other people. Squatting there in the dusty dusk, digging our fingers into a common pot, something for a little, made us all one . . . drew us together as fine silver and linen and plattered meats would never have done.

Peering through the shadows into their scarred, bronzed faces, into their deep, defiant eyes, something in me woke . . . something in them answered . . .

All my life I have remembered that gypsy stew. And, with the years, I have slowly come to know its deeper meaning. For the years made a gypsy of me, too, sending me drifting down cruel, hard roads . . . camping in lonely lanes. And many a strange thing went to the flavoring of my scanty stew . . . danger and pain, recklessness, loneliness, anger and grief.

And a grave by the wayside which the heart will never forget, though the feet must go trudging on.

Gypsy stew—how many a pot I've made—how many a pot I've shared! And something came with that sharing which I never found in happy, carefree life.

Squatting there together, lonely and outcast and poor.

Dipping thin, workworn hands into a common pot.

Dreaming together, for a while, over some bright, small fire——

Laughing together, for a while, with our eyes defying the dark——

Something in me woke . . . something in them answered . . .

Here's a Proud Father

His Daughter Is a Beauty, His Son Has Great Talent.

FEODOR CHALIAPIN AND DAUGHTER, MARIA CHALIAPIN

If by any chance you have never seen and heard Feodor Chaliapin, friends can tell you that he is a great artist—as a singer and as an actor.

In his portrayal of Boris, he embodies the history and the power of Russia. And he has named his son Boris.

Those that admire him will be glad to know that in spite of the Russian revolution that swept away every dollar he had and his plan for a great musical institute in Russia, Chaliapin is a happy man.

The portrait here was painted by his talented son. The intelligent girl photographed beside the portrait, Maria Chaliapin, his daughter, has been chosen as "Miss Russia, 1931."

In Russia they take intelligence into account.

In our "Miss America beauty contests" we allot about 75 per cent to the legs, 23 per cent to the general shape, 2 per cent to the forehead.

Two per cent isn't enough, because the important occupation of women is creating the human race, and in that work all depends on the brain, plus normal health, plus sincere affection.

A happy father is Chaliapin, successful in his own artistic career, successful in his children that represent him well.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 2.—It was the waggish Eddie Cantor, cleaned out himself, who declared right after the market crash that hotel clerks inquired of guests seeking rooms: "For sleeping or jumping?" Since December, 1930, a total of 102 spectacular window leapers have been first paged.

In fact there have been so many skyscraper hops that these suicides are classed only as routine in newspaper shops. Carl Brandt, the literary agent, has been a witness to three cases of window jumping that never reached the news columns.

Such tragedies are increased by the power of suggestion. One in a neighborhood is often followed by a series. Some of the taller buildings employ "suicide look-outs" to patrol the halls and watch those who may be acting suspiciously.

The most ghastly high leap recorder was from a top floor of the Woolworth Building about eight years ago. So frightful was the impact when the victim landed on his feet that a bone in his leg was driven through his body and through the top of his skull.

New York goes to extreme lengths to protect people from all forms of self-destruction. The Sullivan law makes carrying arms a prison offense. Attempts at suicide rate similar punishment. Laws against sale of poisons are more stringent than in other states.

Yet little can be done to thwart window jumpers. They merely lean out a window and let go. As a rule such plunges are impulsive. Following the stock disaster, two men and a woman suddenly quit board rooms at various times, went to roof tops and jumped.

While living catercorned from the Hotel Roosevelt I saw a man climb out on a window ledge as I was breakfasting. At first I supposed he was a window cleaner. Suddenly he put his hands over his eyes and toppled down with a sickenish rush. In 10 minutes the block was the same as usual. I went back to bed.

Sidewalk pitch men are hard hit by the depression. There is no trouble mustering a crowd. But they are mostly the unemployed, who hang on to their dimes.

Among newest caterings to the very rich is a sandpile artist with a shop off Madison avenue in the 50's. He builds bins for children and fills them with colored sands. Add unusual professions—tinting sand.

Virginia Dale, the writer, was aroused out of a sound sleep the other 3 a. m. by a voice that mumbled: "I just saw your name in the telephone book. Mighty pretty. Goo' bye."

Then there is Aubrey Eads' reply to the barber who asked if he had tried the master barber's famous special hair lotion. "Yes," cracked Eads, "but I don't think it is that!"

Editors are a bit nutty these days, too, while the rest of the world goes mad. A special delivery yips this: "I am sending a photographer to snap you in your new, trench coat with pick and shovel. It will be printed as Custard's—maybe, it was Custer. I wouldn't know as I prefer meringue, myself—Last Stand. So realizing that it must be an oversight, we must insist your account, long overdue, be settled at once as we are closing out the business."

In the past week I talked to three men who were inconsolable six months ago about the loss of excellent positions. Today all not only have better jobs, but brighter prospects for the future. Without being fired I might never have found this cinch.

Isn't It So?

Men worry a lot about their hair—when it's half gone.

Men are as anxious to speak well of each other as women are not.

Few women succeed in being popular with men and women at the same time.

The umbrella picks out a rainy night for a holdup but the footpad isn't so particular.

Every cloud has a silver lining which is just about as accessible as the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You may not have a fun-loving manner and you have not much use for the studious, sedate sort of person.

You think he is trying to show his imagined superiority.

You like the hail-fellow kind and pride yourself on being that sort.

You like to allude to what you have attained in comparison with those who make much pretention of mental accomplishments.

As a surface thinker you may be all right and have done fairly well.

But if you are honest enough to think a little deeper you might be able to see that more earnest study and concentration would make for more success than you will ever have.

Invariably the shallow thinker ridicules the slower processes of the deep student.

Life seems too short to you to spend so many years in silent study.

But suppose the world was composed entirely of surface thinkers?

Men of your kind who go through life the easiest way and take a chance on being able to put things over when the time comes, would not get very far in the world of science.

Your kind would not keep enterprise, industry development and expansion on the up grade and in an ascending scale.
